ELECTORS DUPED

London, Oct. 29.
Mr. Snowden, in an interview,
said: "A great task awaits the National Government. The result of the election gives it an unanswerable right to speak and act for the nation but not to pursue any Party object. Great Britain's position in the world will be immeasurably strengthened."

"The result is a magnificent justification of democracy."
Mr. Snowden went on to emphasize that the overwhelming majority for the National Government is not a party, but a National emergency.

Sir Herbert Samuel, in a speech
at Darwen, expressed similar views,
declaring that the great Parliamentary power placed in the hands of the Conservative leaders is not unconditional, but is given them as members of the National Government, to be used for a generally agreed purpose, and not for the purposes of any one party.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, in the course of a statement, declared:
"The Tory Party's manifesto has succeeded far beyond its leaders' most optimistic expectations. The electors have been duped on a grand scale by the cry, 'It's your money they want.'"

STATE OF THE PARTIES.

LABOUR DEBACLE CONTINUES.

At 4.15 p.m. when 567 of the 615 constituencies had recorded their decisions, the state of the parties was:

Conservatives	147
National Labour	12
Liberals	63
National Govt.	322
Labour	43
Independents	2

An hour later, with twenty-four more declarations made, the Opposition had obtained relatively an improvement, the figures being:

Conservatives	159
National Labour	13
Simon Liberals	31
Other Liberals	41
National supporters	510
Labour	48
Independents	2

At this stage the Labour Party had lost 231 of their seats in the last Parliament, of which the Conservatives had gained 205, the National Labour candidates, 13, and Liberals 13.

Only Ten Outstanding.

At 10 o'clock, only seven returns remained to come in. Those from Fermanagh and Tyrone were expected at any time. Inverness is expected to be declared to-day
(Thursday), Inverness (Western Isles) on Friday, and London University on Saturday.

Parliament now stands:
For the Government 555
Against the Government 50
Independents 3

Conservatives gained total 208.
Labour losses total 235.

MR. BALDWIN'S MESSAGE

NO PARTY VICTORY. A NATIONAL DECLARATION.

THE NATION has won a great and decisive victory.
This is no party victory. It is an emphatic declaration by the people as a whole in favour of national co-operation in order to restore the fortunes
of the country.

The effect of the nation's unmistakable verdict
on foreign opinion cannot be over-estimated.

The overwhelming support given to the National Government will resound throughout the world and will re-establish confidence in the stability and greatness of Great Britain.

Democracy has justified itself in most striking fashion and the patriotic instincts of our people revealed in all their strength.

Furthermore, the electors have declared in no uncertain voice that the insidious doctrines of class warfare cannot make headway against a general desire for national co-operation at a time of national emergency.

The workers of the country have put their trust
in a National Government and we must not fail them.
—Mr. Baldwin's Message to the Nation.—Reuter.

VERY EMPHASIS OF RESPONSE EMBARRASSING.

PRIME MINISTER'S MESSAGE TO THE NATION.

The Prime Minister has also issued a message to the Nation, in which, after thanking the millions of all parties who supported the National Government at the polls and subordinated for a moment party feelings to the National needs, he says: "The Majority is as unique as it is gratifying. It must convince the whole world that when Britain calls for assistance willing hands and developed minds will always respond heartily. The very emphasis of the response is embarrassing, but I appeal for forbearance as well
as confidence."

"If the people see that our task is difficult we will also give them ample evidence that the Government is facing it with sincerity and that men who may not see eye to eye on ordinary political questions are united heart and soul in finding the best way to overcome the present troubles."

"To my political friends who have suffered such unusual reverses, and especially to those of them who
with splendid faith and courage backed our appeal and helped to swell our victory, I give an assurance that our triumph will in no way mean that the interests of the working classes will be overlooked in
the performance of the task before us."

A new portrait of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in whose personal prestige and leadership it is to be found one of the principal reasons for the country's sweeping verdict.

Mr. William Graham, ex-President of the Board of Trade, third in line to Labour Party leadership, who crashed at Edinburgh.

MR. GRAHAM SHARES FATE OF COLLEAGUES.

ONLY MR. GEORGE LANSBURY LEFT TO LEAD THE OPPOSITION IN THE NEW HOUSE OF COMMONS.

LLOYD GEORGE FAMILY INTACT.

THE unprecedented completeness of the National Government's electoral victory, foreshadowed by yesterday's results, has been emphasised by latest returns. When Parliament meets on November 10, the Government will have a majority of over 500!

The great majority of results have now been declared—only seven are outstanding—and it is apparent that when the King's Speech is read, the Government will have the support of 560 members, the opposition being represented by about 55.

The only members of the late Labour Government who retained their seats as Official Labour candidates were Mr. George Lansbury, Major Attlee and Sir
Stafford Cripps. It is thought likely that Mr. Lansbury will lead the Labour Party in the new Parliament.

TALE OF CONSERVATIVE SOLIDITY COMPLETE.

The tale of Conservative solidity, told by London divisions like St. Pancras, Wandsworth, and Leyton, by industrial centres like Hull, Sunderland, Wednesbury, and Sulop, and by the sweep of the Conservative colours through Lancashire, whose eighteen divisions returned five more Tories and seven less Labourites, applies equally to the counties.

CHESHIRE, DEVONSHIRE, DORSETSHIRE, ESSEX, HAMPSHIRE, HERTFORD,
KENT, SOMERSET, WARWICKSHIRE, WILTSHIRE, WORCESTER AND MIDDLE-
SEX ARE ALL SOLIDLY FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

The Welsh boroughs and counties have retained their Liberal tastes, but the most surprising turnover has occurred in Glasgow, where there are fifteen seats. These were previously held by ten Labour representatives and five Conservatives. After Tuesday's debacle, Glasgow is represented by ten Conservatives, four Labour M.P.s and one independent!

Incidentally, the Conservative record is unique in the history of any big party. They did not lose a single seat. The Labour Party cannot rejoice in a single gain!

BRITISH MENTALITY PUZZLES MOSCOW.

The results have staggered Moscow, according to a message from Riga. The landslide towards Conservatism has caused anxiety as regards Anglo-Soviet relations. That the British mentality is inscrutable is the official Soviet verdict and the reports from agitators
in England have been unreliable.

Mr. R. Law, a son of the late
Mr. Bonar Law, gained South-West Hull from Labour, in the Conservative interest. He eliminated Mr. J. Arnott, who had a majority of 2,439 at the last election.

Central Hull was also won by a Conservative. Commander Kenworthy, the "most inquisitive man in the House" and the representative of the division for the past 12 years, was defeated by over 3,000 votes in spite of the fact that he had a clear majority over two candidates in 1929.

Mr. Graham Defeated.

Mr. William Graham, the President of the Board of Trade in the last Labour Government, and a Deputy Leader of the Labour Party, was overwhelmed at Edinburgh Central. A 10,000 majority in 1929 was turned into a 7,000 defeat.

The three members of the Lloyd George family have all been returned.

Dr. Drummond Shiels, ex-Under-Secretary for the Colonies, Mr.
Hugh Dalton, ex-Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Miss Jennie Lee, the youngest woman in the House of Commons, and Mr. Hall were all victims of the Labour disaster.

The Kid Takes the Count.

The boxer, Kid Lewis, who acted as Sir Oswald Mosley's bodyguard in the latter's New Party campaign,
"took the count" at Whitechapel,
where a Liberal member obtained a 1,200 majority. Lewis polled 154 votes!

At Brighton, the Conservatives had a majority of over 62,000 each —exceeding the previous record established by Sir Philip Cunliffe Lister.

Four members of the late Labour Government who were victims of the almost total eclipse of the Official Labour Party. Left to right: Mr. W. Adamson (Secretary for Scotland), Dr. C. Addison (Minister of Agriculture), Mr. Tom Johnson (Lord Privy Seal), Mr.
A. V. Alexander (Admiralty).

THE TSANG FOO MURDER TRIAL.

TWO MORE MEN DISCHARGED.

Yesterday afternoon saw the conclusion of the lower Court proceedings against the men charged before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy with the murder of six Japanese residents at Tsang Foo Villas, Kowloon City, on the evening of September 26.

Two more of the remaining seven men were discharged yesterday, the Magistrate holding that on the evidence given by the prosecution against them, no jury could convict.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—I have given all the evidence I have against the defendants, your Worship.

His Worship.—Is that all? Then all that remains is for me to decide whether or not there is a case against them?

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Yes, your Worship.

Magistrate Reviews Evidence.

His Worship.—The first defendant was found hiding in a tank very shortly after the murder. There is no doubt that there is a case against him.

The second defendant is alleged to have been arrested by an Indian constable close to the bodies on the roof, and was seen to be actually striking one of the bodies. If the prosecution is to be believed, there is certainly a case against him.

The third defendant was also arrested on the roof by another Indian constable trying to escape from the scene of the murder.

The fourth defendant was also arrested in the house close to the scene of the murder. There is also a case against him.

The fifth defendant was arrested by Sergeant Doig at the end of the verandah in company with another man, who escaped. Both this man and the fifth defendant were hiding from the Police at the time. Obviously it is a question of fact to be decided by the jury as to whether or not he was concerned in the murder as one of the party who took part in the assault on the house. Despite his age, he is only 15—there must be a case against him.

Doubtful for Committal.

The seventh and eleventh defendants were arrested in a matched some distance away from the scene of the murder. These two are the only doubtful ones for committal. The facts against the seventh defendant are that he was arrested by a Chinese detective who found him lying on the floor of a match-shed. The Chinese detective found traces of blood on his coat, but it is unfortunate that this coat has not been produced. The facts against the eleventh defendant are that he was found in the same match-shed lying on a bed. On examination, he was found to have a wound on the right leg. His Worship added: There is not a scrap of evidence that they were actually in the mob.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—No, your Worship. In my opening, which was rather a long one, I think I made my case clear.

His Worship.—The statement made by the seventh defendant in answer to the charge was that a man named Wong called on him and others to go and attack the Japanese, and he followed.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Immediately that he followed, he became a disciple of a man who preached destruction.

His Worship.—There is no evidence that either of these men went farther than the gate.

Crowd of Sightseers.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—There is one feature of the case which I did not know anything about until Sergeant Doig went into the witness-box, and that is that there was a crowd of sightseers. By following that man Wong, the seventh and eleventh defendants became members of a riotous mob, but they might have later ceased to be members of that mob and became sightseers. I hardly think, however, that the mental attitude of each of the mob could

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF MR. KOO YING-FAN AT CANTON.

Canton, Oct. 28.
Mr. Koo Ying-fan, member of the Extraordinary Kuomintang Session and State Councillor of the Canton Government, who was also a veteran Kuomintang leader, passed away at his residence in Canton at six o'clock this afternoon.

The late Mr. Koo was a close associate of Mr. Hu Han-min and Gen. Chan Chai-long. He played a leading role in the recent anti-Chiang Kai-shek movement, and prior to his return to Canton was Chief of the Civil Service Department of the Central Government in Nanking.

The Canton Government has telegraphed to Nanking, the sad news, and circulated a telegram to all the Kuomintang offices throughout the country; and a State funeral and flags at half-mast have been ordered in honour of the late official.

Mr. Lin Yan-kai, Chairman of the Kwangtung Government, who was a subordinate of the late Mr. Koo, has hurried back from Shanghai since the news of Mr. Koo's serious illness reached him.—Review.

He taken into account.

His Worship.—If it could be shown that at any time they were in the mob, there would certainly be a case against them. If these two men are committed on a charge of murder, then every man in the village at the time could also be committed on the same charge.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Except that they do not make statements to the effect that they followed a man named Wong.

Case Weakened.

His Worship.—I am afraid the fact that there was a crowd of sightseers has weakened your case considerably against the seventh and eleventh defendants.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Yes, your Worship.

His Worship.—I don't think I am going too far to say that if the decision was left to the jury, the judge would instruct the jury that there was insufficient evidence to convict. I therefore discharge these two defendants.

The two men discharged were Lau Fat, 20, unemployed, and Tam Cheung, 26, gardener.

His Worship committed the remaining five men to the next Criminal Sessions for trial.

These five men are:—
(1) Wong Hong, 26, gardener.
(2) Lai Tung-hoi, 19, gardener.
(3) Tsang Cheung, 22, gardener.
(4) Cheung Kam-chi, 20 schoolboy.
(5) Wong Ka-hung, 17, student.

MR. JAMES McLEOD.

LEAVING FOR HOME NEXT WEEK.

Masonic Lodges and other bodies in the Colony will lose an invaluable worker, when Mr. James McLeod, Chief Warden at the Victoria Gaol, leaves for home on the P. and O. liner Naldora on November 7. During his 30 years in Hongkong, Mr. McLeod has been prominent in Scottish and Masonic circles and has held many important posts. The many friends he and Mrs. McLeod have made are certain to miss their helpful assistance. On their return home Mr. and Mrs. McLeod are to reside in Glasgow.

Mr. McLeod has spent his life in prison service, having entered the Scottish service as a young man on May 10, 1896. His first post was at H. M. General Prison, Barlinnie, Glasgow, but he was later transferred to Dundee, where he remained until he decided to leave for Hongkong.

With Mrs. McLeod, he arrived in the Colony on May 10, 1901 and took up his duties as principal warden. In 1909 he was acting chief warden for 12 months, and also acted in that capacity in 1921 and 1922. His appointment to Assistant Chief Warden was made in 1925, while he was promoted to his present position in 1927.

Keen Masonic Worker.

Mr. McLeod took a deep interest in Masonic affairs soon after his arrival. He is at present District Grand-Master Substitute of the Scottish Freemasons in Hongkong and South China. He is also a Past Master of the Naval and Military Lodge, No. 848, Scottish Constitution; P. Z. Naval and Military Royal Arch Chapter, No. 302, South China, and P.M.W.S. of the Rosecroix Phoenix Chapter, No. 18, South China. He was elected Hon. Grand First Sojourner of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter, Edinburgh, and is also a member of the Royal Order of Scotland. For 22 years he was treasurer of the Naval and Military chapter in Hongkong and acted in a similar capacity for the Naval and Military Chapter, No. 302, Hongkong, for 23 years.

Taking a keen interest in all kinds of sport, Mr. McLeod was a prominent member of the Civil Service and Police Club's bowling sections, and was also on the football and swimming committees of the Police Recreation Club.

On October 22, Mr. McLeod was entertained by the Scottish Freemasons of Hongkong, and presented with a marble time-piece, and a gold watch and chain, while Mrs. McLeod was given a gold wristlet watch. On Tuesday, Mrs. McLeod was entertained by the ladies of the Prison staff and presented with a handsome pair of silver vases.

LEADING PERSONALITIES OF ELECTION.

Mr. Arthur Henderson's dreams of residence at No. 10, Downing Street were rudely shattered.

Sir Samuel Hoare, who goes back to Parliament and office with his majority increased by 10,000.

The Grenadier Guards stand watch over the famous strong rooms where John Bull hoards his dwindling gold stocks. The arrival of this contingent of the historic regiment to go on duty at the Bank of England, was one of the scenes which accompanied the recent suspension of the gold standard.

LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "MAD MARRIAGE"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Kent, thirty-four, secretary in a law office, saw Mark Travers for the first time when together they viewed a puppy from downtown traffic in Marlboro, middle-western metropolis. Norma declines to tell Travers her name at where he can see her again.

Bob Farrell, young lawyer, asks Norma to marry him and she refuses, though she is fond of him as a friend. Norma takes the puppy to the shady apartment she shares with Christine Saunders. She feels Chris is falling in love with her married employer, Bradley Hart, proprietor of an advertising agency. Norma inserts an advertisement about the puppy in a newspaper column and the first person to answer is Mark Travers. He tries to make a date but Norma declines his invitations. A small boy comes to claim the puppy and takes it home.

Norma goes a drive with Bob Farrell and he tells her he is leaving Marlboro. Two days later she meets Travers on the street and goes to lunch with him. This is the beginning of a whirlwind courtship. Norma also must find Travers away because of some secret of the past. Chris declares if Norma loves Travers all else is unimportant.

Mark is invited to dinner at the apartment. Norma is there alone when a caller arrives. He tells her he is Mark's father and demands her affair with his son shall end. In the midst of a heated quarrel the father threatens to disown Mark. If he marries Norma, the father agrees. The couple drive to the town of Woodbury with Chris and Bradley Hart married. Then Mark takes his bride to the palatial Hotel Marlboro.

CHAPTER XIII

The glowing orb of molten gold stirred gently and moved to the right. Out of the sunlight it was not glowing metal at all but a mass of tangled and unruly curls. Norma shook her head and the bobbing tangle that had been obscuring the vision of her left eye fell back into place.

Curled up in the huge rose tapestry chair the girl seemed a tiny creature. She wore a negligee of blue, it was skimpily cut, made of cheap material but as gloriously naive as the heavens on a perfect July morning. A worn black satin mule flopped back from one bare foot. Norma's loose sleeves fell away almost to the shoulder, revealing arms of creamy whiteness. Like the rest of Norma's body the arms were exquisitely formed, slender but round.

She was smiling. Not at the stout man across the room. His back was towards her. Norma smiled at the reflection in the mirror of the dressing table. It showed a young man, careless, energetically braided a snook of brown hair over his forehead. He was an unusually good-looking youth even when he frowned, as he did just then, and threw down the brush to tug at his necktie. Suddenly he caught Norma's eyes watching him in the mirror. The frown became a grin. Mark whirled.

"See here, Mrs. Travers!" he said. "Do you call yourself a helpful wife? Sitting there taking my hair out? I try to do! Can't even tie my tie decently! See here, and of conduct do you call that?"

In three strides he was across the room, perched on the arm of Norma's chair and touselling her curls.

The girl laughed and tried to defend herself. A moment more and Mark had routed her from the chair, appropriated it himself. He held Norma, protesting gaily, in his arms and the game became a spirited contest. Much rubbing of hands, curls the wrong way. It was excitement, fun—half-play, half-earnest. Flushed and breathless, at last Mark claimed undisputed victory. At last he placed a long kiss squarely on the girl's lips.

Norma lay back and looked at him from beneath the dark fringes of her lashes.

"Look at your tie now," she suggested demurely.

It was a very much improved tie. Travers grimaced in the mock dismay. He shook his head.

"So this is married life! Terrible terrible!"

A little beyond reach stood the breakfast table. It had been abandoned some time since and was littered with crumpled napkins and soiled dishes. There were pink roses in a silver vase in the centre of this disarray.

Norma drew herself away. "It really is terrible!" she agreed. "Goodness, it must be—why, look! nearly 11 o'clock! Oh, Mark, think of all the things we should be doing! They won't have any idea at the office what's become of me. Mr. Brooks will be furious."

"Let 'em worry. You're never going back there again."

"But, Mark, don't you think—"

A knock at the door interrupted. It was the waiter who had come to take away the breakfast table. As he was leaving Mark took out his wallet and stuffed a bill into the man's hand. The waiter bowed, murmured thanks and departed. Mark did not replace the wallet. Instead he opened it again, drew out a collection of coins and greenbacks and looked at them. A rueful smile spread over his face. He scratched his chin meditatively.

"There was exactly $80 in that wallet yesterday," he announced. "Ninety-six dollars." Suddenly the bright grin returned. "Madame!" he declared with dramatic eloquence, "with all my worldly goods I three endow! Thirteen dollars and forty-five cents! Count 'em, Thirteen dollars!" He flung the contents of the purse into the girl's lap.

He was laughing and Norma laughed, too. This was evidently a joke. She gathered the money together.

"But you don't really mean it!" she protested. "Not—$96! You couldn't have spent all that in one day. Why it's more than three weeks' salary!"

Mark reversed the wallet, held it up, shaking it. "Must have spent it," he said. "It was here! You know," he went on, frowning as though in deep thought, "that's the queerest thing about money. I've thought of it before. Amazing thing! One moment you have it and the next it's gone. Have you ever noticed it?"

"Have I noticed it? Not often but every third day after pay day for the last three years! Ever since I've been working—"

Travers was not listening. With resolution he suddenly made for the coat draped on a chair across the room, thrust his arms into the place. In a flash he had become businesslike.

The girl jumped to her feet.

"Where are you going?" she asked.

Mark came to her and put a hand on each of her shoulders. He smiled carelessly. "Promise to miss me horribly!" he demanded. "Promise every minute I'm away will seem an hour! Will you do that?"

"Oh, but I don't want to be alone here, Mark! Can't I come, too?"

Apparently this was not to be thought of. It was absolutely essential for Mark Travers to depart alone. But he would not be gone long. There was business to attend to and as soon as it had been settled he would come hurrying back. Norma's chagrin at this turn of events did not seem to displease young Travers.

She tried once more to speak of the office where she had been due at 8:30. Mark scoffed.

"You're to stay here," he insisted. "Right here in this room! And honestly I won't be long. Why, darling, don't you realize this is the first day of our honeymoon? Don't think about jobs and offices. All that is past for you. You're Mrs. Mark Travers and a devil of a lucky guy your husband is! Well, he realizes it. Not much of a prize package perhaps. Just a dud, but he's managed to get himself the prettiest, cutest, sweetest little bride in all the world!"

Somehow it took much longer than might seem necessary for that farewell. It was thrilling to hear the ridiculous things Mark said. It was difficult for the youth to tear himself from blue eyes filled with adoration, from lips and soft arms that would restrain him. The door closed and Norma was alone. She could not even hear Mark's footsteps going down the carpeted hall. Desperately she wanted to call him back but what good would that do? He would only go away a second time.

The luxuriousness of the room about her suddenly impressed Norma. She run to the door leading into the bedroom. The rich ivory, rose and mulberry of walls and hangings, sleek, beautiful valamin furnishings, doors that were mirrors, and beyond her glow of sunlight on a peach-filled bath—she seemed to have noted none of these details before. The room was restrained elegance that a place must be beautifully expensive.

Norma turned. There on the table in the sitting room were the paper bills and coins Mark had tossed into her lap. Thirteen dollars and forty-five cents—

Sharply the girl wished for Mark. There was no use pretending this rosy haze of happiness could go on endlessly. The work-a-day world was there just as it had been. This glorious balloon bubble must burst and ample warnings had been sounded in Norma's deliberately unlistening ears that all might not be so joyous then.

There had been the scene with Mark's father. Where was Mark now? Where would he get money to pay for this handsome suite of rooms? They couldn't stay on here. Where would they go? Mark's work in the real estate office had been in his father's employ and would end now. What would he do? What would she do?

A thousand practical questions waited to be discussed. Neither she nor Mark had mentioned any of them. Again Norma thought restlessly of her job in the office of Brooks, Welliver and Brooks! It really had not been right to leave without notice. Of course 24 hours ago she herself hadn't the faintest notion that this morning she was to be Mark's wife. She treasured those words; repeated them slowly. Mark's wife!

Safe after a harrowing week upon a slowly sinking land plane in the Atlantic, the flyers of the ill-fated Eux are shown here as they boarded the passenger liner Stange-fjord bound for New York—the original destination of their attempted flight from Portugal. They were being transferred at sea from a motor ship Belmont, which rescued them, thirsty and starving, from the wreckage of their plane off N. coast of W. Ireland. Willy Roddy, owner of the Eux plane, is seen in the middle.

Willy Roddy (left) and Capt. Christian Johansen, two of the three flyers of the ill-fated Eux, are shown happy and safe aboard the liner Stange-fjord.

How she loved him! That was bath with its burnished nickel taps the tremendous, unquestioned fact and fitment. She let cold water of her existence now. How she loved him and plashed her cheeks with it until they coloured deeply. She brushed her hair and made the soft cushions of the divan. She was happy again in memories. For long minutes she lay there. After all what was there for her to do in this new whirlwind of being but in tribute to Mark. There seemed to wait for Mark? Mark would make everything come right. Mark him.

She arose, went through the doorway into the roscate, sun-lighted room.

WOMEN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS.

DRESSING FOR HEALTH.

The Place of Colour in Clothes.

The tremendous change which has come over their dress during the past few years is said to be the cause of the increased health which women now enjoy. But while this is doubtless to some extent true, there are other contributory causes.
It may be, for instance, that women are becoming more alive to the fact that the harmonious use of colours in dress is not only a pleasing aesthetic to the beholder, but also a physical tonic, and therefore a source of improved health to the wearer. It is not at all difficult for any interested person to prove beyond all doubt that colour exerts an immense influence upon health.

No Definite Rule.

While it is doubtless true that no definite rule of fashion in colours can be set out, there are many suggestions which, if followed, would assist us in the selection of the most beneficial colours. For instance, it is well known that blue and green have a soothing effect upon the nervous system, and are therefore recommended for those who are suffering from nervous disorders.
Red, on the other hand, is a stimulant, and is therefore recommended for those who are suffering from depression or lack of energy.

But there are many people who are not so easily influenced by these suggestions, and who prefer to follow their own fancy. In this case, it is well to remember that the most beneficial colours are those which are most pleasing to the eye.
If a person is wearing a dress which is not pleasing to the eye, it is likely to be detrimental to their health.

Choosing a Dress.

When choosing a dress, it is well to remember that the most beneficial colours are those which are most pleasing to the eye. If a person is wearing a dress which is not be detrimental to their health.

FROCK MATCHES HAT'S MOOD.

(By Joan Savoy.)

Hats really are at the very top of the fashion picture this year.
It is necessary for a frock to have a perfect understanding of the hat's mood if the two are going to form a harmonious ensemble.

This Empress Eugenie hat of black felt with its audacious tilt and luxurious ostrich plume, is designed for the opera, matinee, and afternoon bridge parties, or tea.

from purple, as these otherwise dulling colours serve to accentuate the paleness, and will even impart a bilious appearance to a face if there is any yellow tinge about it, but they can often advantageously utilize one of the many greenish tints which are available.

There are so many new names for colours nowadays that many people are at a loss to know what exactly they stand for, and this has made the choosing of an outfit more difficult than ever. Yet all these new names can be traced back to one or other, or to a combination of two or more of the primary colours, and it is quite safe to say that they can be got to harmonize with any complexion if care be exercised in the choosing.

Light Colours Best.

On the whole, the lighter colours are always best as they allow the

A black velvet frock is presented as the type of dress most in keeping with the spirit of the hat.
The neckline, which is square, has a generous four-inch band of white ermine as a decorative feature. There is a suggestion of the Empire influence at the waist, to which is belted with fine wooden

Dark colours, on the other hand, have the effect of turning light into heat, which prevents its natural chemical action on the body, and these colours are, to that extent, detrimental to health.

If we would take our cue from nature, whose unrestricted growth is never discordant, we shall no longer insist that colour combinations are a mere matter of taste.
We are sure, taste must not be altogether ignored, since it is in some degree necessary for the proper application of the principles of harmony. Yet the exercise of common sense will clearly show that a considerable amount of common sense will be far superior to anything which is the outcome of guess-work or caprice.

EXIT LABOUR!

To say that the General Election of 1931 will go down in history as betokening the most remarkable expression of national feeling ever to have been registered in Britain is but mildly to state the truth. The net result, virtually wiping out the Labour Party, is such as even the most optimistic supporter of the National Government could not have hoped for. All past political victories pale into insignificance compared with the triumph for common-sense recorded in Tuesday's polling. Above all else, the outcome once again proves that in times of crisis or national emergency, the British people invariably do the right thing, however much they may be given to "muddling through" when conditions are normal. In a word, the election advertises to the whole world that the nation is thoroughly sound at heart.

When the decision was made for the election to be fought on a basis of the National Government versus The Rest, it was generally felt that the Nationalists would win. The arrangements between Conservatives and Liberals in co-operating with a view to avoiding three-cornered contests obviously cut down the chances of Labour. But, even discounting this factor, the polling has shown a most amazing unanimity on the part of voters to send the National Government back to power. In the result, most of the Labour stalwarts have fallen by the wayside, so that the Party to-day is a mere fragment, with practically no leaders, destined to be utterly helpless in the new Parliament. Men who are not really extremists, such as Mr. Henderson, Mr. Clynes, Mr. Alexander and Mr. Morrison, figure among the rejected. For the time being at any rate, their political careers have at one fell swoop been brought to an end. They made the cardinal mistake of putting Party before Nation in a time of crisis. They have been told in no unmistakable terms that the people consider the present juncture to be one when pressing national and Imperial problems should be tackled on non-party lines. Emerging also from the conflict is the complete vindication of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and those of his followers who remained with him. The Prime Minister has clearly demonstrated his political sagacity, and, with others who have thought with him, has shown that he correctly sensed the nation's temper. His victory at Seaburn, in spite of Labour opposition, fittingly rounds off his recent activities and further establishes him in the esteem of the people.

What of the future? With such an overwhelming majority at its command, the National Government would appear destined to enjoy long life. It could, without difficulty, hold the reins for the full five-year term. Much will depend, however, on the Conservatives, now easily the preponderant party. There will be a great temptation for them to exploit the situation, but we prefer to believe that the "gentleman's agreement" between Mr. Baldwin and Mr. MacDonald will be loyally observed. Tariffs, within defined limits, seem inevitable, as well as some measure of Empire economic co-operation. But although they have the power, we do not imagine the Conservatives insisting on full-blooded Protection, not yet awhile, at any rate. Overwhelming as the Conservative strength is, it would be difficult to sustain the contention that the country has given a mandate for such a complete reversal of Britain's fiscal system. The great point about the election, and it is one which has given unforgotten delight to all overseas Britons, is that the Old Country wants her problems faced in a spirit of bold, broadminded statesmanship, reflective of a determination to put the nation's affairs on a sound, healthy basis. That, in brief, is what the verdict of the people means.

Japan and Manchuria.

Japan's determination to discover her own way to a settlement of the Manchurian dispute is again clearly expressed. The official communique issued from Tokyo on Tuesday reveals no modification of attitude in spite of the League Council's resolution, which Japan contends, with some justification, has no legal standing. Thirteen countries have called upon Japan to withdraw her troops by November 16. The immediate response, though no connexion appears—was the despatch of further troops and the extension of their encroachment. Nevertheless, Japan's statement of her position is reasonable in tone and argument. She declares, as though it were necessary, that her peculiar privileges in Manchuria have been challenged by China, working not by plan or organization, but by a covert hostility expressed in sheer weight of numbers. All the outstanding issues appear to Japan to be in the nature of evidence of a subterranean campaign aimed at Japanese rights. To this phantom, the Japanese have set up, and are at present determined to maintain, a very open kind of so-called defensive opposition, one which, being plainly aggressive, is more understandable to the West, and one which, to many minds, has prejudiced her position in world public opinion. Not only is this a fact, but the occupation has been provocative of trouble between Chinese and Japanese all over China. Tokyo must have been aware of the danger, but still went ahead. It is a point to be remembered when considering the sincerity of Japanese protestations regarding her respect for China's territorial integrity. There seems no reason to doubt that Japan's sole object is to secure an actual effort on the part of China to negotiate a settlement of pending issues. Japan wants nothing more than to drag the Chinese into diplomacy, Manchuria, though retaining power, has shifted the work and bother of diplomacy to the de jure authority in Nanking, though it is open to question whether the Nanking Government's writ is acceptable to the local au-

HONGKONG SHARE MARKET.

OFFICIAL SUMMARY BY STOCK EXCHANGE.

The demand noted in yesterday's report developed this morning into a regular wave of buying. Consequently rates advanced substantially, in spite of which buying is far from being satisfied. It is also to be noted that for the bulk of the demand is for cash, an eminently satisfactory state of affairs.

Banks were in demand at $1,610. China Underwriters were wanted at the advanced rate of $5.55. Douglasses were in the market at $24.

Kailan Minings changed hands at 287.

Wharves were in request at $164. Providents (old) were wanted at $5.35, and the new shares at $2.40. Hotels closed in firm demand at $15.65, with sellers seeking $16. The new shares were wanted at $15.15.

Lands, which were done at $84, closed in demand at this rate with sellers asking $84.50.

Humphreys (old) were wanted at $18.5, and the new shares at $18.4.

Realities, which were done at $12.80, closed in demand at $13.

Ewes changed hands at Tls. 16.40, closed at this quotation and sellers offering at $16.2.

Trams were wanted a $22.5.

State Ferries were in demand at $91.5.

China Lights, after being dealt in at $29, had buyers at the close at $28.5 with sellers seeking $29.5.

Electricities were in demand at $77.

Telephones (part paid) were the medium of sales at $29.5.

Cements (combined) were put through at $19.95 and $20.5, and at the close had buyers bidding $20.10.

Ropes were in demand at $17.4.

Dairy Farms were wanted at $30.

Watsons were done at $15.5, at which they closed in demand.

Lane, Crawford (old) were wanted at $6.5, and also the new shares at $6.4.

Constructions (old) were wanted at $5.20 and the new shares at $1.30.

LORD LANGFORD SEEKS DIVORCE.

WAITRESS WIFE TO DEFEND.

Melbourne, Oct. 2.
A petition for divorce by Lord Langford, whose wife formerly worked as a waitress in a Strand teashop, came before the Supreme Court of Victoria to-day. He alleges desertion.

Through counsel, Lady Langford intimated that she wished to defend the suit and file a counter-petition. By agreement between counsel, the judge made an order that Lord Langford should pay three guineas investigation fee and £20 on account of his wife's costs. Lady Langford to be at liberty to apply to have her husband's petition stayed if the amounts were not paid.

The Judge also extended until February 16 the period allowed for Lady Langford's counter-petition to be lodged.

thorities. Japan is determined, by some means or other, to put a stop to the game of battledore and shuttlecock hitherto pursued. She has now set out the fundamental principles of understanding which she demands of China, and which she refused to present for perusal of the League Council. China meanwhile has suggested a Treaty of Arbitration. Thus, on the whole, hopes of peace are a trifle brighter. They would be more so if Japan could only see the advantage to be gained from making a concession to strong-world feeling.

The Man Who Didn't Pay.
HIS WIRELESS LICENCE.

By ROBERT LYND.

IT becomes clearer as the world grows older that an increase of civilisation means an increase of espionage and infiltration. Successive Governments spy upon our incomes. They spy upon our ages and the number of rooms in the houses in which we live. Insurance companies find out whether we are teetotalers or not. A modern Englishman cannot even enter his own country without an official attempting to discover whether he is really an Englishman and whether he has any cigarettes in his pockets.

So accustomed have we become, indeed, to the Paul-Frying of modern life that I doubt if we have any spirit left to protest against the new invasion of our privacy by the "radio ghost car" that is being sent prowling round England's streets to spy upon homes in order to discover whether occupiers possess an unlicensed wireless set.

Before long, there will be little that the authorities do not know about us. Already, I believe, they can discover without asking us whether we have a leaking tap in the house. A time will come when, by means of a ray, they will be able to discover from a policeman in the street whether we use American or English razor-blades. They will be able by the same means to count our linen and to see whether our floors are properly swept. The very pennies in our pockets will not be free from their penetrating stare.

It may be argued that, since we invent instruments to spy upon the secrets of the moon, and other instruments to pry into the hidden life of the water in the ditch, it is only fair that we ourselves should be subjected to as strict an inspection. But the moon has no secrets of which to be ashamed, and the microscopic creatures in the water are free from a sense of guilt under scrutinising eyes. We human beings, on the other hand, have consciences, and many of these consciences must be fairly and ones, if the estimate that in Britain there are 400,000 possessors of wireless sets who have not paid for licences is approximately true. If all human beings were honest, we could smile at ghost cars and their ingenious espionage. As it is, imagine the miseries of apprehension that this new fraud-detector must be bringing into 400,000 homes—homes, each of which was proudly believed, even within living memory, to be an Englishman's castle.

Alas! stone walls do not a castle make, nor brick walls either, now that the ghost-car is to be permitted to search our houses without a warrant. No longer will the guilty householder be able to sit in the bosom of his family listening to the Sunday sermon from the loud-speaker, and feel that here, at least, he is secure. No longer will he lean back in his chair, rosy with domestic bliss, glowing with the knowledge that he has saved ten shillings of the family income that a different kind of parent might have squandered on taxes. Henceforth, how different a figure will crouch by the fireside! The rosy glow will have faded from his face. He will shuffle nervously in his chair, like a man who feels that he is being watched through a keyhole. Every time the door bell rings he will start like a guilty thing expecting a fearful summons.

Having been unaccustomed to pay his ten shillings, he will for some time be unable to face the agony of paying up, and will do his best to save what little he can for a rainy day. His wife will notice that he is growing haggard; she will notice how he picks his ears and how his features twitch convulsively every time he hears a passing motorcar. She will call in a doctor who will diagnose neurasthenia, and prescribe bromide.

Instead of getting better on the medicine, however, he will get worse. He will find himself sent off to Brighton for a month's holiday, which will cost him far more than he has ever saved on wireless licences, and, even at Brighton, he will be so far from a cure that, every time he catches sight of the window of a wireless shop he will jump a foot into the air and race wildly along the street with the clutching hands of an invisible pursuer as near the back of his neck as a tickle.

Restored to Domestic Bliss.

It will be a nervous wreck, with all his money gone, who returns home. As a last hope, his wife will send him to a psycho-analyst, borrow money to do so; and the psycho-analyst will grope into the murkiness of his infancy and discover that at an early age he had secretly fallen in love with a penny.

After long inquiry and deliberation, the psycho-analyst will say: "I can cure you, but I must warn you that the cure will be a painful one. It is this: Pay your wireless licence."

The patient will object violently, but he will be told that if he does not obey he will be haunted by ghost cars till in the end he may even lose his reason.

At that, in sorrow and in anguish, he will pay up. And his health will immediately take a surprising turn for the better. By the end of a few months he will not mind if there is a ghost car in every street. Rosy with domestic bliss, will sit in the bosom of his family listening to the Sunday sermon from the loud speaker and wondering how he can defraud the revenue in some other and safer way.

LUXURY SURTAX.

AN IMPOST FOR FAMINE RELIEF APPROVED.

Nanking, Oct. 28.
The Central Political Council has approved the National Government's luxury surtax regulations, and details have been handed over to the Legislative Yuan for examination.

It is understood that the surtax is limited to from three to five per cent. on luxury goods, the proceeds to be for famine relief.—Reuter.

"Those things you washed last week were shrunk till I couldn't get him in them."
"Maybe he's just growing that fast, lady."

THE PRIME MINISTER'S SPLENDID SUCCESS.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON'S RESULTS OUTLINED.

London, Oct. 28. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, interviewed by Reuters at Seaham, said: "The result is not only astonishing, but astounding. There are two gratifying things, one that Mr. J. H. Thomas has won as a noble, the other that Sir Herbert Samuel has been elected. Conservative opponents at Darwen. Nothing shows more clearly that the election is a National Government election, not a party election."

Mr. MacDonald intimated that he did not care to discuss the results in detail until he had seen the complete list.

Although fatigued, Mr. MacDonald sat up until 1.20 a.m. listening to the results over the wireless, being most anxious to hear how his friend Mr. Thomas had fared. Reuters.

French Opinion.

Paris, Oct. 28. "England has given us an impressive spectacle of a magnificent recovery," declares the Matin, reflecting the general enthusiastic admiration of the French press on the British election results, to which the newspapers devote many columns.

The Matin adds that the elections cannot fail to have an enormous repercussion over the whole world, the English people having shown their determination to react against the policy of disorder and waste, which determination has been remarkably demonstrated in the working class centres. Reuters.

Reaction in Canada.

Ottawa, Oct. 28. Gratification at the victories of the Government candidates, as a result tending to have a steady effect all over the world, is expressed privately by members of the Government, although they refrain from official comment.

It is intimated in Government circles that the new British Government has a mandate for a general policy of reciprocal tariff agreements in various parts of the Empire.

They consider the resumption of the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa in 1932 probable, with new inter-Empire trade agreements, based on preferential tariffs, resulting. Reuters's American Service.

What America Says.

New York, Oct. 28. The "landslide" in England is regarded here as a vindication of Mr. MacDonald, who is very popular in America.

The New York Times in an editorial declares: "Labour's victories in England in the past were due to discontent, but this time discontent has operated against her. The result shows the desire of the English people for Government with a dependable majority of its own in the House of Commons, which will not indulge in wild experiments or extravagance, but strive in all things for stability, sound financial administration and wise conduct of foreign affairs." Reuters's American Service.

Tariffs Issue.

Washington, Oct. 28. Officials are watching the election results with some perturbation, especially because of the belief that the return of so many Conservatives will open the way to the enactment of protective import tariffs, which it is felt, however, are likely to affect France, with her large volume of luxury imports, more than other countries.

Chief attention is centred in what Canada will do in the event of Britain being willing to enter into a general Empire preference agreement. Reuters's American Service.

Lord Burghley.

London, Oct. 28. In the second day's declarations the Conservatives again drew blood at Peterborough, where the well-known athlete Lord Burghley won for the Conservatives from the sitting member, the Labourite cartoonist Mr. J. F. Horrabin.

A second Conservative gain was at Nottingham West, where their majority was 5,633.

Major W. G. A. Ormeby Gore, a former Under Secretary for the Colonies, and Postmaster General in the Coalition, was returned for Stafford.

Dr. Christopher Addison, Minister for Agriculture in the Labour Government, was defeated at Swindon by Sir R. Mitchell Banks, who had ousted in 1929.

Mr. P. J. Pybus, Liberal, who is Minister of Transport in the Coalition, was re-elected for Harwich. He is described as a "Tariffist" and supports a British Empire policy.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, Junr., son of the Labour Opposition leader, was defeated for Cardiff South.

Mr. Lloyd George held his seat, as did his daughter, Miss Megan, both against Conservative opponents.

Mr. Lloyd George's opponent, Mr. Gourlay, had offered to resign if Mr. Lloyd George would pledge his support to Mr. MacDonald.

Mr. E. T. Campbell, a rubber planter, Conservative, was elected for Bromley by a large majority.

Miss Lawrence Out.

Miss Susan Lawrence, who was Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health in the Labour Government, was defeated at East Ham North.

In Cornwall (Northern) the Minister for Education, Sir Donald Maclean (Lib.) retained his seat in a three-cornered contest with a reduced majority. One of his opponents, Lieut. Col. A. M. Williams, had previously sat for the Conservatives.

Sir John Simon has been re-elected.

Mr. Tom Johnston, Lord Privy Seal in the Labour Government, lost his seat at Stirling and Clackmannan (Western), his last majority of 3,590 becoming a minority of 1,819.

The Premier's son, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, Under Secretary for the Dominions in the Coalition, retained his seat at Bassettlaw (North), in a straight fight with a Labourite.

Mr. H. B. Lees Smith, who was Postmaster General in the Labour Government, has lost his seat.

Other Labour casualties were Mr. F. O. Roberts (Minister for Pensions) and Mr. F. W. Pethick Lawrence (Labour's Financial Secretary to the Treasury).

Sir C. P. Trevelyan (Labour's President of the Board of Education) was defeated.

Admiral Dewar, who stood in the Labour interest after the trouble on the H.M.S. Royal Oak, was defeated.

Mr. Winston Churchill was re-elected.

Sir John Simon was re-elected by a great majority against an old Labour opponent.

In a three-cornered fight, Mr. Winston Churchill held Epping by an overwhelming margin.

An interesting fight took place at Islington East, where Mrs. Leah Manning (Labour) a spirited opponent of Viscountess Astor in Parliament, was defeated by Miss Cazale (Conservative).

For Islington West, the Labour ex-Minister, Mr. F. Montague, was defeated. He used to be a conjuror and is a member of the Magicians' Circle. In this election a Communist candidate polled no votes at all!

ed as National Labour Member for Bassettlaw with a 19,000 majority. Sir Robert Horne, Sir Donald Maclean, President of the Board of Education, are back in the new House and Jack Jones will sit again for Silvertown, with one of the largest Labour majorities.

Next Cabinet.

The Prime Minister will probably see the King to-morrow, before meeting the old Cabinet. He is expected also to consult with Mr. Baldwin and Sir Herbert Samuel. The reconstructed Cabinet will not be limited to ten members as in the case of the Cabinet formed for the emergency in August.

Parliament meets next Tuesday and, after formal preliminaries, will be opened by the King on November 10th.

Women Members.

There will be at least a dozen women members of the new Parliament, of whom eight will be new-comers. None of the former women Labour members were returned, but Lady Astor and the Duchess of Atholl are both back. Over fifty candidates forfeited their deposits of £150 paid on nomination, through failure to obtain an eighth of the votes polled. In practically every case these were either Communists or members of Sir Oswald Mosley's new party. The polls gave an exceptional number of large majorities. The smallest was at Ilkeston where a National Labour Member was

Loyal Enthusiasm.

Their Majesties the King and Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York and Prince George, were present at Drury Lane Theatre to-night. A great crowd of enthusiasts surged through the police cordon and pressed closely to the Royal car and men and women waved their hats and cheered vociferously as Their Majesties stepped out.

Scene in Theatre.

Inside the house, the Royal Party had one of the most enthusiastic welcomes ever witnessed in any London theatre. When Their Majesties entered the Royal Box, the whole audience rose and spontaneously sang "God Save the King."

It is many years since so many members of the Royal Family have attended a theatre together. Reuters.

LAWN BOWLS SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP.

U. M. OMAR TO MEET LAING IN FINAL.

U. M. Omar will oppose J. Laing in the final of the Lawn Bowls Open Championship of the Colony. Yesterday, at the Club de Recreo, Omar defeated N. Drummond in a semi-final tie by 21 shots to 15, though his victory was no easy one, and the competitors remained on level terms until the 15th head, when Omar obtained a lead of three, which he turned into game by scoring a three on the 19th head.

Omar fully deserved to win, as he bowled with fine consistency, but Drummond put up an excellent display and was not disgraced by his defeat.

ARMY ROWING.

TROPHIES CONTESTED AT STONECUTTER'S REGATTA.

For the first time since the Army Autumn regatta was inaugurated three years ago, two trophies were competed for at the Army rowing championships on Monday at Stonecutter's.

The Garrison Chaplain's Challenge Cup, presented by the chaplains in 1928, was open to novice crews from all companies and batteries, and attracted the record entry of 13 crews. The first three in each of the two heats went into the final, resulting in the 12th Battery "B" crew, 31st Battery, 20th Battery, 12th Battery "A" crew, B. Company Argylls, and the Royal Engineers facing the start.

The 31st Battery had won the event in the past two years, but they could do no better than second, being beaten by the 12th Battery "B" which took the lead at the start and were never headed. They won by half a length with the 12th Battery "A" third.

A New Trophy.

A new trophy presented by H. E. Major-General J. W. Sandilands was contested by the infantry battalions, four crews entering from each battalion, and the race counted as a team event, all boats finishing being awarded points. A very close and interesting race resulted, ending in the two battalions tying with 18 points each. The S.W.B. "C" Company crew was first past the post however, as the 10th Battalion were disqualified.

After the racing the G.O.C. presented the prizes and in a short speech said that he considered it a fine effort that about 150 men had taken part in the events, and the standard had been very high. He thanked Commander Morris R.N., Rev. Scott Little, Lieut. Cmdr. Baston R.N. and Capt. Brockman for their able assistance in judging and said that his reason for presenting his own trophy was that in events open to the garrison the Armyillery seemed and still seemed invincible. He hoped to give the infantry some encouragement. His own trophy was a magnificent silver junk.

Lieut. Col. Gross of the S.W.B. thanked the G.O.C. on behalf of his own regiment and the Argylls. After the awards the Officers of the Royal Artillery were at home to the Garrison officers for tea.

The following have been selected to represent the Second Eleven versus the South Wales Borderers on the Kowloon Football Club Ground on Saturday, kick off at 3 p.m.: Gurevitch, Wells, London, Whitfield, Gilchrist, I. Greenberg, M. Greenberg, White, Simpson, Cotton, Bickford, Reserve: Everest, Williams and Guest.

LOCAL HOCKEY.

The hockey match between the Radio Sports Club and the H.K.S.R.A. played yesterday afternoon, resulted in a goalless draw. The game was very fast and even from start to finish.

as the STARS play it

Why must one take the club back slowly?

Notice for yourself some time the ease and rhythm in the backswing of the long, accurate driver and you will not wonder at his accuracy and length. The secret lies in his slow backswing.

A baseball pitcher can't display his customary speed and control in throwing if he jerks his arm back quickly. When it is possible for him to do so he takes a slow, easy windup and then puts his full power into it in the overhand or sidearm throwing motion.

The same principle works in golf. Distance and accuracy are obtained by bringing the club-head into the ball squarely and while travelling at its maximum speed. By taking it back slowly and easily, it enables one to increase the speed on the downswing. Besides his wrists, arms, shoulders and body are more likely to work in harmony.—ART KRENZ.

YULETIDE ART.

RAPHAEL TUCK'S FINE ASSORTMENT.

The good old custom of exchanging reasonable greetings during the Yuletide season is one which, so far as English people are concerned at any rate, seems never likely to die. If there is one institution more than another which keeps the custom alive it is the famous house of Raphael Tuck and Sons, Ltd., whose World Art Service is universally known. Once again, this British firm is to the fore in an amazingly varied and beautiful selection of all that is best in Christmas, New Year, and Birthday cards, reasonable auto stationery, art and fancy calendars, gift books and all manner of art novelties. "Better than ever" is a term which may be applied to this year's productions, all of which bear that mark of quality which the name of Raphael Tuck implies.

Once again, Raphael House is entrusted with the production of the Royal cards, all of which are of high artistic merit and real triumphs of the printer's art. His Majesty the King's card depicts "St. Paul's from the River," a beautiful painting by Bernard Gribble; Queen Mary's is a charming study, "I Know a Lovely Garden," the work of Flora Pilkington; Gilbert Wright has painted the Prince of Wales card, a happy study entitled "Meeting the Squire," Princess Mary's card depicts "a hunting scene," "Breaking Cover," also by Gilbert Wright; whilst the Duke and Duchess of York have "St. James' Park, 1660," painted by Gordon Browne.

3,000 Designs.

Of the other cards, there is a truly wonderful variety, comprising upwards of three thousand different designs, amongst which the "Tapestry," "Garden Objects," "Modernesque," "Art Etchings," and "Pot Pourri" series are outstanding examples. The popular auto stationery cards, in boxes with envelopes, may also be mentioned.

Of calendars there is no end of variety. Notable here are the "Oil Paintings" with their representation of the actual brush marks of original oil paintings of charming gardens, flowers, sailing ships, dog subjects, etc., besides which there are more than 130 daily block calendars, each combining a charming picture with a set of helpful or entertaining quotations and other valuable information for every day of the year. Amongst these are hints for motorists, housewives, golfers, gardeners, etc.

Gift Books.

Gift books which will appeal to children of all ages are issued of types and prices which will appeal to all tastes and pockets. Some of them are amazing bargains. The Golden Treasury Library is a really remarkable series of beautiful books, comprising seventeen attractive volumes, such as "Old Time Fairy Tales and Nursery Rhymes," "Dickens' Dream Children," "Alice in Wonderland," issued at 3s. 6d. net. "Our Holiday Book," "The Happy Book" and "The Merry Book," and in them will be found stories, songs, puzzles, etc. These also are priced at 3s. 6d. Astounding values are the Little Peoples' Library, including "Bobby Rabbit,"

BRIDGE TOURNEY.

CHINESE CLUB WIN TRIAN-GULAR CONTEST.

An inter-club triangular bridge contest, at the Sports Club last night, was won by the Chinese Club, with 4,403 against 4,101 for the Kowloon Cricket Club and 4,397 for the Sports Club.

Messrs. M. K. and M. W. Lo, with the highest aggregate (2,627) were winners of souvenirs presented by the Sports Club.

and Bruin-Black Bear" and "So to Bed Stories," all most attractively illustrated and selling at 6d. per volume.

New Annual.

A word must be added regarding "Tuck's Annual" and "Father Tuck's Annual for Little People." A novel feature of these publications is to be found in realistic surprise panoramas and "come to life" pictures, which consist of beautifully cut out figures which stand out in a most lifelike manner from appropriate backgrounds as soon as the page is turned. "Tuck's Annual," published at 5/-, appears for the first time under this name. "Father Tuck's Annual" has been a favourite for over thirty years; now the name has been changed to cater for older children, to whom the thrilling stories, chatty articles, puzzles and verses will make a wide appeal.

"Father Tuck's Annual for Little People," though offered at a lower price, is full of good things including charming stories and verses, interesting puzzles and simple songs set to music. Besides the wonderful new panoramas, both volumes contain four beautiful full-page colour plates and many black and white illustrations.

Two very interesting books have been added to "The Golden Treasury Library," namely "Tales That Thrill" and "Tales of Adventure." Published at 3s. 6d. each, they have a strong appeal for the schoolgirl and schoolboy, being by writers who understand thoroughly the mentality of modern youth, while the illustrations are full of vigour. Yet another new series has been started, styled "The Happy Youngsters' Library." This includes four charming volumes, "Robin Hood and His Merry Men," "Robinson Crusoe," "Winky Wonky Bird Stories" and "Fairy Tales." Their effective covers immediately attract, while the contents are full of interest. At one shilling each, they are of outstanding value.

So we could go on citing all manner of other wonderful products, amongst which must be mentioned the really most attractive "Don Appati" and "Lacette" brand of paperware, which includes serviettes, doilies and souvenir cups—high quality articles which enjoy great popularity. In short, Raphael House caters to everybody. And when Tuck's products are bought, the purchaser knows that he is securing the finest British goods which can be procured.

GUILTY LIPS.

slipped into her clothing. She hurried because Mark might return at any moment. She must be ready to leave when he returned. They couldn't remain in this extravagant place any longer.

When she had made herself as presentable as possible, the girl spent a painful moment before the mirror. Her dress was the one she had worn the night before. It was a brown robe of utmost simplicity, bought only three weeks before. Modish, well-fitting in spite of its cheapness—but brown. Brown was no colour for a bride to wear! Her neat pumps were brown, too, and she had worn the brown baret in place of a hat. It had seemed appropriate for the drive to Woodbury, less appropriate this morning. Well, doubtless hundreds of other brides who had made impulsive marriages had known the same pangs over absence of wedding finery.

From the sitting room window Norma could see the huge clock on a sky-scraper tower two blocks away. Twenty after twelve now. Mark had been gone nearly an hour. She tried peering down into the street to see if she could see him. That was ridiculous. The window was on the eighth floor and it was impossible to look straight downward.

Well, she could write the letter to Brooks, Welliver and Brooks explaining why she was giving up her work.

It was a difficult letter to write. Norma sat at the neatly appointed desk a long while before she put her pen down on the fresh paper. She began three separate pages and in rapid succession discarded them. It was fully 45 minutes before the note was finished and then Norma studied it with dissatisfaction before finally the sheet was folded and inserted in its envelope. She addressed it but left the flap un-

HONGKONG UNIVERSITY.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION MAGAZINE.

Lampadee-Dromos, the official organ of the Hongkong University Christian Association has made its bow, and it is fitting that its first number explains its name. In Greek the words mean "Torch Bearer," and the sponsors have seized on the name hoping that each generation of the University will hold aloft the Torch of the Gospel as did the runners in the ancient Greek torch races.

The first number of 20 pages contains an interesting selection of personal gossip, resumes of recent events connected with the Association's activities, and some notes on coming events, a literary page and some exchanges of opinion.

Lampadee-Dromos hopes to appear twice during this term.

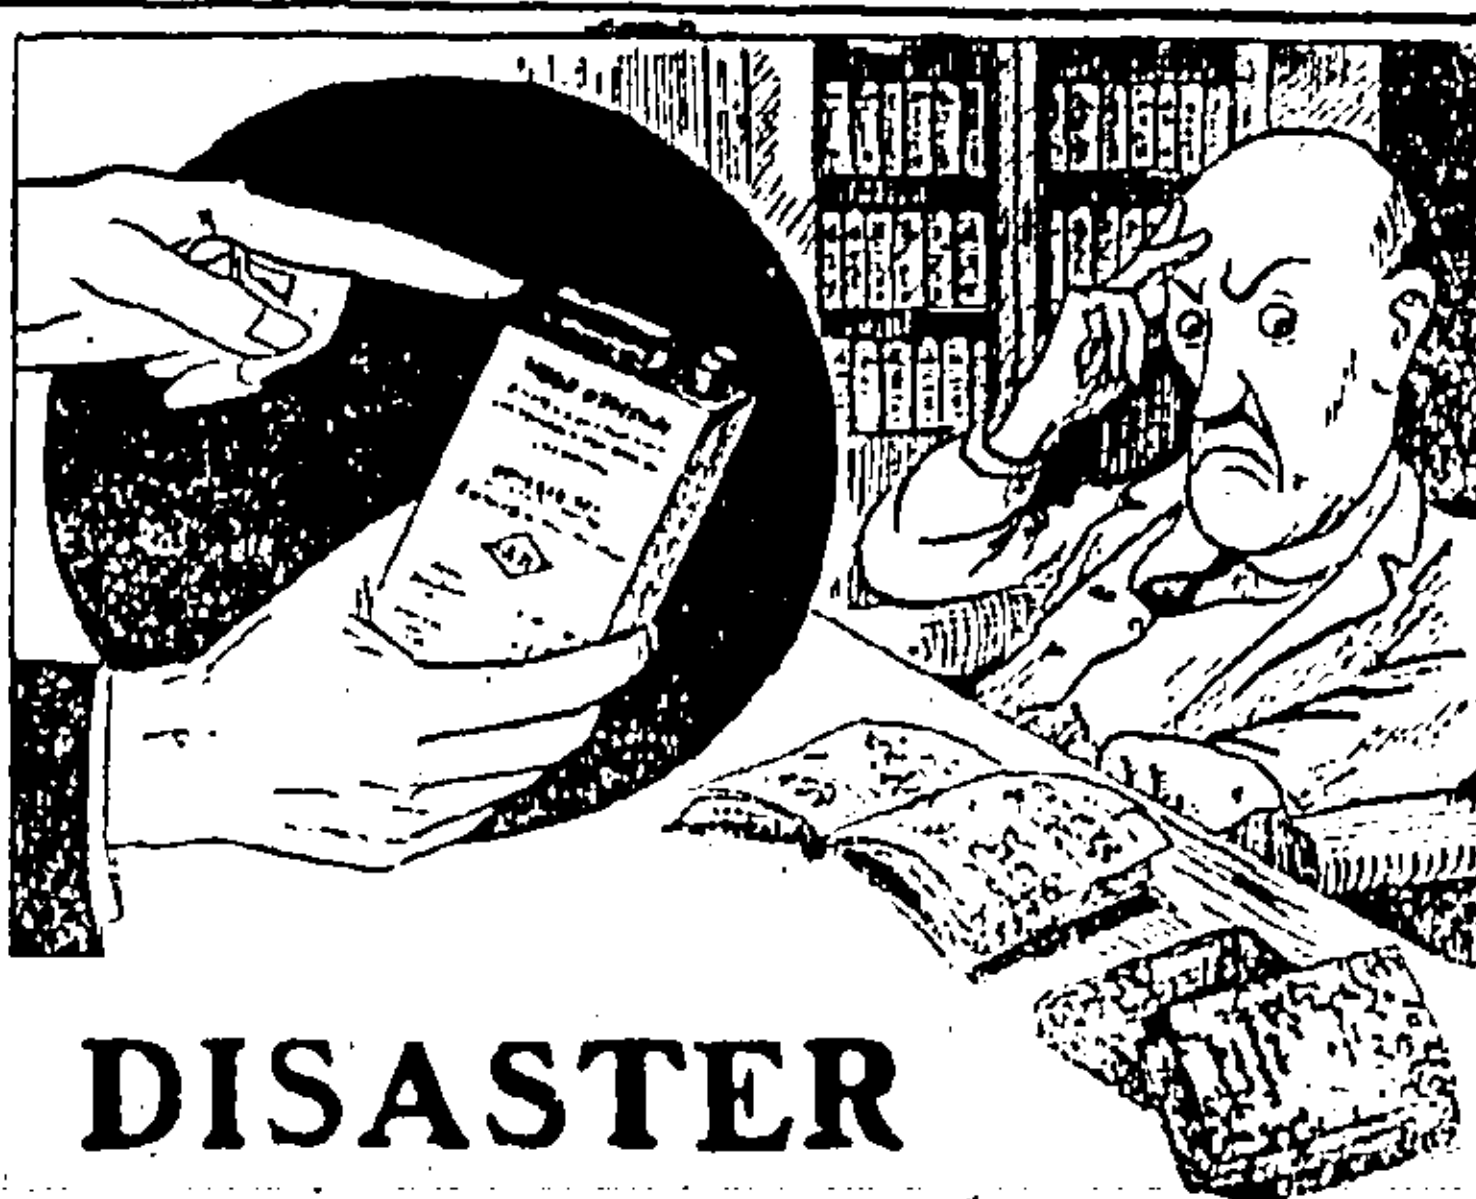

seated. She would ask Mark what he thought of the note before mailing it.

Surely Mark should be there! Terror with clutching, vice-like fingers of ice gripped the girl's heart. A traffic accident—a single misstep—oh, if anything had happened—!

Again she sought the window. Then for 10 minutes Norma paced back and forth—back and forth. She could not sit still but she must stop this worrying. She must believe nothing terrible had happened. It was only a foolish nightmare. Mark would be there any moment now. She sat down again. A moment more and she was on her feet, as restless as before. The frightful premonition would not be downed.

At 3 o'clock Norma was still waiting. She was still alone. What had become of Mark Travers?

Could this be his father's work? (To Be Continued)

MAINTENANCE CASE HEARING.

A KOWLOON COUPLE'S DIFFERENCES.

Hearing in connection with the summons on which Mrs. A. F. Gladstone is proceeding against her husband for maintenance and legal custody of their two children, was resumed before Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Field, mother of Mrs. Gladstone, subpoenaed as a witness, was questioned by Mr. D. B. Evans (appearing for the husband). Mrs. Field declared that but for the subpoena she would not have been bothered otherwise to come into Court. "I would not have put myself in where I was not wanted," she said.

She and her daughter had quarrels now and then, same as other people, but her relations with her daughter had always been friendly. It was her husband who caused the differences, and he was responsible for the daughter's debts. Mr. Evans: It has been alleged in this case that your daughter was struck by her husband just before the birth of her second child?—I was not there. I know nothing about that.

She did not know the nature of the quarrels between the couple other than quarrels which all people had. She did not know anything about her daughter's having an infatuation for a man, called Corporal Wall, at Shanghai.

Of Mr. Williams, witness said she knew nothing more about him than that he used to be a frequent visitor at her house at the same time as Mr. Gladstone, before the latter's marriage, and they were then all friendly.

Mr. Evans: Do you remember an incident on the Castle Peak Road when your husband, Mr. Field, knocked down this boy-friend of hers?—I was in a closed car and I saw nothing of it.

Asked if she ever objected to her daughter's carrying on with other men, witness replied: She is a married woman, nothing to do with me.

Magistrate's Reproof.

Told by the Bench not to quarrel, witness said she didn't object, as she never interfered.

Amongst the other witnesses called were the two other daughters of Mrs. Field.

Miss Nell Field stated she knew that her brother-in-law objected to Corporal Wall, the idea, she believed, being for her sister to give up the man.

As to the fifth incident at the Peninsula Hotel witness regarded it in the light of a mere family quarrel. She had thought it rather amusing, too, as after Mrs. Gladstone had thrown the glass of water at her husband, she passed another glass of water to her sister. She never saw her brother-in-law strike his wife.

Replying to Mr. Evans, witness was of the opinion that it was perfectly natural for Mrs. Gladstone's husband to object to her association with the other man.

Dr. E. W. Kirk, of China Building, said he had attended the children during their spells of sickness. They were normally healthy and well-nourished.

After Mr. C. Gray, proprietor of Savarin House, had given evidence regarding the charges for the upkeep of the children at his boarding establishment, the summons was adjourned until to-day.

NO CHANGE IN THE DOLLAR.

LITTLE RESPONSE BY £ TO ELECTION.

Contrary to expectations, the London-New York cross-rate has not materially improved as a result of the sweeping victory for the National Government, the quotation being 3.001.

Silver has advanced 1/8th in London, where the offerings are small. The market is quiet, with India small buyers and American showing little interest.

In New York, silver is up a quarter, the market being steady. The Hongkong dollar remains unchanged at 1s. 2 1/2 d., the local market being dead. A nominal rate of 1s. 3d. is quoted, but no one seems inclined to do business. The Shanghai rate is 1s. 7 1/2 d., the market being dull.

NOTHING FRESH.

MANCHURIA ISSUE UNCHANGED.

London, Oct. 28. Developments in the Sino-Japanese situation appear to be making time.

The Chinese Embassy in London has heard nothing fresh on the position either from Nanking or Geneva, while Dr. Sze, the Chinese representative to the League Council, is reported to be still in Switzerland. — Reuter.

ELECTORS DUPED

London, Oct. 29.
Mr. Snowden, in an interview,
said: "A great task awaits the National Government. The result of the election gives it an unanswerable right to speak and
act for the nation but not to pursue any Party object. Great Britain's position in the world
will be immeasurably strengthened."

"The result is a magnificent justification of democracy."
Mr. Snowden went on to emphasise that the overwhelming majority for the National Government is not a party, but a National voice.

Sir Herbert Samuel, in a speech
at Darwen, expressed similar views,
declaring that the great Parliamentary power placed in the hands
of the Conservative leaders is not unconditional, but is given them as members of the National Government, to be used for a generally agreed purpose, and not for the purposes of any one party.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, in the course of a statement, declared:
The Tory Party's manoeuvre has succeeded far beyond its leaders'
most optimistic expectations. The electors have been duped on a grand scale by the cry, 'It's your money they want.'—Reuter.

STATE OF THE PARTIES.

LABOUR DEBACLE CONTINUES.

At 4.15 p.m. when 567 of the 615 constituencies had recorded their decisions, the state of the parties was:

Conservatives	417
National Labour	12
Liberals	63
National Govt.	522
Labour	43
Independents	2

An hour later, with twenty-four more declarations made, the Opposition had obtained relatively an improvement, the figures being:

Conservatives	459
National Labour	13
Simon Liberals	24
Other Liberals	44
National supporters	540
Labour	48
Independents	3

At this stage the Labour Party had lost 211 of their seats in the last Parliament, of which the Conservatives had gained 205, the National Labour candidates, 13, and Liberals 13.

Only Ten Outstanding.

At 10 o'clock, only seven returns remained to come in. Those from Fermanagh and Tyrone were expected at any time. Inverness is expected to be declared to-day
(Thursday), Inverness (Western Isles) on Friday, and London University on Saturday.

Parliament now stands:
For the Government 555
Against the Government 50
Independents 3

Conservatives gain total 208.
Labour losses total 235.

MR. BALDWIN'S MESSAGE

NO PARTY VICTORY. A NATIONAL DECLARATION.

THE NATION has won a great and decisive victory.
This is no party victory. It is an emphatic declaration by the people as a whole in favour of national co-operation in order to restore the fortunes
of the country.

The effect of the nation's unmistakable verdict
on foreign opinion cannot be over-estimated.

The overwhelming support given to the National Government will resound throughout the world and
will re-establish confidence in the stability and greatness of Great Britain.

Democracy has justified itself in most striking
fashion and the patriotic instincts of our people
revealed in all their strength.

Furthermore, the electors have declared in no
uncertain voice that the insidious doctrines of class warfare cannot make headway against a general desire for national co-operation at a time of national emergency.

The workers of the country have put their trust
in a National Government and we must not fail them.
—Mr. Baldwin's Message to the Nation.—Reuter.

VERY EMPHASIS OF RESPONSE EMBARRASSING.

PRIME MINISTER'S MESSAGE TO THE NATION.

The Prime Minister has also issued a message to the Nation, in which, after thanking the millions of all parties who supported the National Government at the polls and subordinated for a moment party feelings to the National needs, he says: "The Majority is as unique as it is gratifying. It must convince the whole world that when Britain calls for assistance
willing hands and developed minds will always respond heartily. The very emphasis of the response is embarrassing, but I appeal for forbearance as well
as confidence."

"If the people see that our task is difficult we will also give them ample evidence that the Government is facing it with sincerity and that men who may not see eye to eye on ordinary political questions
are united heart and soul in finding the best way to overcome the present troubles."

"To my political friends who have suffered such unusual reverses, and especially to those of them who
with splendid faith and courage backed our appeal
and helped to swell our victory, I give an assurance that our triumph will in no way mean that the interests of the working classes will be overlooked in
the performance of the task before us."

A new portrait of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, in whose personal prestige and leadership is to be found one of the principal reasons for the country's sweeping verdict.

Mr. William Graham, ex President of the Board of Trade, third
in line to Labour Party leadership, who crashed at Edinburgh.

MR. GRAHAM SHARES FATE OF COLLEAGUES.

OPPOSITION IN THE NEW HOUSE OF COMMONS.

LLOYD GEORGE FAMILY INTACT.

THE unprecedented completeness of the National Government's electoral victory, foreshadowed by yesterday's results, has been emphasised by latest returns. When Parliament meets on November 10, the Government will have a majority of over 500!

The great majority of results have now been declared—only seven are outstanding—and it is apparent that when the King's Speech is read, the Government will have the support of 560 members, the opposition being represented by about 55.

The only members of the late Labour Government who retained their seats
as Official Labour candidates were Mr. George Lansbury, Major Attlee and Sir
Stafford Cripps. It is thought likely that Mr. Lansbury will lead the Labour Party in the new Parliament.

TALE OF CONSERVATIVE SOLIDITY COMPLETE.

The tale of Conservative solidity, told by London divisions like St. Pancras, Wandsworth, and Leyton, by industrial centres like Hull, Sunderland, Wednesbury, and Salop, and by the sweep of the Conservative colours through Lancashire, whose eighteen divisions returned five more Tories and seven less Labourites, applies equally to the counties.

CHESHIRE, DEVONSHIRE, DORSETSHIRE, ESSEX, HAMPSHIRE, HERTFORD,
KENT, SOMERSET, WARWICKSHIRE, WILTSHIRE, WORCESTER AND MIDDLE-
SEX ARE ALL SOLIDLY FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

The Welsh boroughs, and counties have retained their Liberal tastes, but the most surprising turnover has occurred in Glasgow, where there are fifteen seats. These were previously held by ten Labour representatives and five Conservatives. After Tuesday's debacle, Glasgow is represented by ten Conservatives, four Labour M.P.s and one Independent!

Incidentally, the Conservative record is unique in the history of any big party. They did not lose a single seat. The Labour Party cannot rejoice in a single gain!

BRITISH MENTALITY PUZZLES MOSCOW.

The results have staggered Moscow, according to a message from Riga. The landslide towards Conservatism has caused anxiety as regards Anglo-Soviet relations. That the British mentality is inscrutable is the official Soviet verdict and the reports from agitators
in England have been unreliable.

Mr. E. D. Simon Defeated.
An analysis of the returns shows that an exceptionally high percentage of the electorate voted and that the completeness of the victory was accounted for, not only by the combination in many constituencies of Conservative and Liberal votes, but by a heavy diminution in the Labour vote.

The Cabinet Ministers in the National Government were all retained and the only member of the National Government to be defeated was Mr. E. D. Simon, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, who stood as a National Liberal.

In addition to the ex-Labour Ministers already mentioned who lost their seats, others defeated were Doctor Addison, Minister of Agriculture, Mr. William Graham, President of the Board of Trade, Mr. W.
Adamson, Secretary for Scotland,
Mr. Wedgwood Benn, Secretary for India, Doctor Hugh Dalton, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Mr.
E. Shinwell, Mines Secretary, Miss
Susan Lawrence, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, and other Under-Secretaries.

Mr. Arthur Hayday, Ex-President of the Trades Union Congress was unseated as was also Mr.
Fenner Brockway, the Chairman of the Independent Labour Party.
Mr. Henderson's younger son shared his father's fate of rejection. The Prime Minister's son, Malcolm MacDonald, was returning. (Continued on Page 7.)

of the almost total collapse of the Official Labour Party. Left to right: Mr. W. Adamson (Secretary for Scotland), Mr. E. D. Simon

THE TSANG FOO MURDER TRIAL.

TWO MORE MEN DISCHARGED

Yesterday afternoon saw the conclusion of the lower Court proceedings against the men charged before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistracy with the murder of six Japanese residents at Tsang Foo Village, Kowloon City, on the evening of September 26.

Two more of the remaining seven men were discharged yesterday, the Magistrate holding that on the evidence given by the prosecution against them, no jury could convict.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—I have given all the evidence I have against the defendants, your Worship.

His Worship.—Is that all? Then all that remains is for me to decide whether or not there is a case against them?

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Yes, your Worship.

Magistrate Reviews Evidence.

His Worship.—The first defendant was found hiding in a tank very shortly after the murder. There is no doubt that there is a case against him.

The second defendant is alleged to have been arrested by an Indian constable close to the bodies on the roof, and was seen to be actually striking one of the bodies. If the prosecution is to be believed, there is certainly a case against him.

The third defendant was also arrested on the roof by another Indian constable trying to escape from the scene of the murder.

The fourth defendant was also arrested in the house close to the scene of the murder. There is also a case against him.

The fifth defendant was arrested by Sergeant Dalg at the end of the verandah in company with another man, who escaped. Both this man and the fifth defendant were hiding from the Police at the time. Objection is a question of fact to be decided by the jury as to whether or not he was concerned in the murder as one of the party who took part in the assault on the house. Doubt—his age—he is only 15—here must be a case against him.

Doubtful for Commitment.

The seventh and eighth defendants were arrested in a matchless some distance away from the scene of the murder. These two are the only doubtful ones for commitment. The facts against the seventh defendant are that he was arrested by a Chinese detective who found him lying on the floor of a matchless. The Chinese detective found traces of blood on his coat, but it is unfortunate that this coat has not been produced. The facts against the eighth defendant are that he was found in the same matchless lying on a bed. On examination he was found to have a wound on the right leg. His Worship added: "There is not a scrap of evidence that they were actually in the mob."

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—No, your Worship. In my opening, which was rather a long one, I think I made my case clear.

His Worship.—The statement made by the seventh defendant in answer to the charge was that a man named Wang called on him and others to go and attack the Japanese, and he followed.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Immediately that he followed, he became a disciple of a man who preached destruction.

His Worship.—There is no evidence that either of these men went farther than the gate.

Crowd of Sightseers.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—There is one feature of the case which I did not know anything about until Sergeant Day went into the witness-box, and that is that there was a crowd of sightseers. By following that man Wang, the seventh and eighth defendants became members of a riotous mob, but they might have later ceased to be members of that mob and become sightseers. I hardly think, however, that the mental attitude of each of the mob could

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF MR. KOO YING-FAN AT CANTON.

Canton, Oct. 28. Mr. Koo Ying-fan, member of the Extraordinary Kuomintang Session and State Councillor of the Canton Government, who was also a veteran Kuomintang leader, passed away at his residence in Canton at six o'clock this afternoon.

The late Mr. Koo was a close associate of Mr. Hu Han-min and Gen. Chan Chai-long. He played a leading role in the recent anti-Chiang Kai-shek movement, and prior to his return to Canton was Chief of the Civil Service Department of the Central Government in Nanking.

The Canton Government has telegraphed to Nanking the sad news, and circulated a telegram to all the Kuomintang officers throughout the country; and a State funeral and flags at half-mast have been ordered in honour of the late official.

Mr. Lin Yun-kai, Chairman of the Kwangtung Government, who was a subordinate of the late Mr. Koo, has hurried back from Shanghai since the news of Mr. Koo's serious illness reached him.—Rena.

Le taken into account.

His Worship.—If it could be shown that at any time they were in the mob, there would certainly be a case against them. If these two men are committed on a charge of murder, then every man in the village at the time could also be committed on the same charge.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Except that they do not make a statement to the effect that they followed a man named Wong.

Case Weakened.

His Worship.—I am afraid the fact that there was a crowd of sightseers has weakened your case considerably against the seventh and eighth defendants.

Mr. Whyte-Smith.—Yes, your Worship.

His Worship.—I don't think I am going too far to say that if the decision was left to the jury, the judge would instruct the jury that there was insufficient evidence to convict. I therefore discharge these two defendants.

The two men discharged were Lau Fat, 29, unemployed, and Tam Cheung, 25, gardener.

His Worship committed the remaining five men to the next Criminal Sessions for trial.

These five men are:

- (1) Wong Hone, 25, gardener.
- (2) Lai Tung-hoi, 19, gardener.
- (3) Tsang Cheung, 22, gardener.
- (4) Cheung Kam-chi, 20 school-boy.
- (5) Wong Ka-hung, 17, student.

MR. JAMES MCLEOD.

LEAVING FOR HOME NEXT WEEK.

Masonic Lodges and other bodies in the Colony will lose an invaluable worker, when Mr. James McLeod, Chief Warden at the Victoria Jail, leaves for home on the P. and O. liner Naldora on November 7. During his 30 years in Hongkong, Mr. McLeod has been prominent in Scottish and Masonic circles and has held many important posts. The many friends he and Mrs. McLeod have made are certain to miss their helpful assistance. On their return home Mr. and Mrs. McLeod are to reside in Glasgow.

Mr. McLeod has spent his life in prison service, having entered the Scottish service as a young man in May 10, 1896. His first post was at H. M. General Prison, Gartnair, Glasgow, but he was later transferred to Dundee, where he remained until he decided to leave for Hongkong.

With Mrs. McLeod, he arrived in the Colony on May 10, 1901 and took up his duties as principal warden. In 1903 he was acting chief warden for 12 months, and also acted in that capacity in 1921 and 1922. His appointment to Assistant Chief Warden was made in 1925, while he was promoted to his present position in 1927.

Keen Masonic Worker.

Mr. McLeod took a deep interest in Masonic affairs soon after his arrival. He is at present District Grand-Master Substitute of the Scottish Freemasons in Hongkong and South China. He is also a Past Master of the Naval and Military Lodge, No. 848, Scottish Constitution, F. Z. Naval and Military Royal Arch Chapter, No. 302, South China, and P.M.W.S. of the Rosebush Phoenix Chapter, No. 18, South China. He was elected Hon. Grand First Sojourner of the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter, Edinburgh, and is also a member of the Royal Order of Scotland. For 22 years he was treasurer of the Naval and Military Chapter in Hongkong, and acted in a similar capacity for the Naval and Military Chapter, No. 302, Hongkong, for 23 years.

Taking a keen interest in all kinds of sport, Mr. McLeod was a prominent member of the Civil Service and Police Club's bowling sections and was also on the football and swimming committees of the Police Recreation Club.

On October 22, Mr. McLeod was entertained by the Scottish Freemasons of Hongkong, and presented with a marble time-piece, and a gold watch and chain, while Mrs. McLeod was given a gold wristlet watch. On Tuesday, Mrs. McLeod was entertained by the ladies of the Prison staff and presented with a handsome pair of silver vases.

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN "Author of 'MAD MARRIAGE'"

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Faithy Norma Kent, 29-year-old secretary in a law office, saw Mark Travers for the first time when together they rescued a puppy from downtown traffic in Marlborough, midtown western metropolis. Norma declines to tell Travers her name or where he can see her again.

Jack Farrell, young lawyer, asks Norma to marry him and she refuses, though she is fond of him as a friend. Norma takes the puppy to the shabby apartment she shares with Christine Saunders, the first Chris is falling in love with her married employer, Bradley Hart, proprietor of an advertising agency. Norma inserts an advertisement about the puppy in a newspaper but and found column and the first person to answer is Mark Travers. He tries to make a date with her but she declines his invitations. A small boy comes to claim the puppy and takes it home.

Norma goes for a drive with Bob Farrell and he tells her he is leaving Marlborough. Two days later she meets Travers on the street and goes to lunch with him. This is the beginning of a whirlwind courtship. Norma finds herself head-over-heels in love but thinks she must send Travers away because of some secret of the past. Chris declares if Norma loves Travers all else is unimportant.

Mark is invited to dinner at the apartment. Norma is there alone when a caller arrives. He tells her he is Mark's father and demands her affair with his son shall end. In the midst of a heated speech Mark appears. Father and son quarrel and the father threatens to disown Mark if he marries Norma. The elder Travers departs. Mark begs Norma to marry him at once and after some hesitation she agrees. The couple drive to the town of Woodbury with Christine and Bradley Hart. Norma and Mark secure a house and are married. Then Mark takes her to the palatial Hotel Marlborough.

CHAPTER XIII

The glowing orb of molten gold stirred gently and moved to the right. Out of the sunlight it was not glowing metal at all but a mass of tangled and unruly curls. Norma shook her head and the bobbing tendril that had been obscuring the vision of her left eye fell back into place.

Curled up in the huge rose-tinted chair the girl seemed a tiny creature. She wore a necklace of blue. It was skimpily cut, made of cheap material but as gloriously azure as the heavens on a perfect July's morning. A worn black satin mule flopped back from one bare foot. Norma's long, slender legs lay away almost to the shoulder, revealing arms of creamy whiteness. Like the rest of Norma's body the arms were exquisitely formed, slender but rounded.

She was smiling. Not at the young man across the room. His back was towards her. Norma smiled at the reflection in the mirror of the dressing table. It showed a young man, countless, energetically brushing a shock of brown hair back from his forehead. He was an unusually good-looking youth even when he frowned, as he did just then, and threw down the brush to tug at his necktie. Suddenly he caught Norma's eyes watching him in the mirror. The frown became a grin. Mark whirled. "See here, Mrs. Travers!" he said. "Do you call yourself a helpful wife? Sitting there taking my mind off everything I try to do! Can't even tie my tie decently! See here, what kind of conduct do you call that?"

In three strides he was across the room, perched on the arm of Norma's chair and tussling her curls.

The girl laughed and tried to defend herself. A moment more and Mark had routed her from the chair, appropriated it himself. He held Norma, protesting gaily, in his arms and the game became a spirited contest. Much rubbing of blonde curls the wrong way. It was exciting, fun, half-play, half-conquest. Flushed and breathless, at last Mark claimed undisputed victory. At last he placed a long kiss squarely on the girl's lips.

Norma lay back and looked at him from beneath the dark fringes of her lashes.

"Look at your tie now," she suggested demurely.

It was worse—oh, so very much worse than it had been! Travers grimaced in the mock dismay. He shook his head.

"So this is married life! Terrible—terrible!"

A little beyond reach stood the breakfast table. It had been abandoned some time since and was littered with crumpled napkins and soiled dishes. There were pink roses in a silver vase in the centre of this disarray.

Norma drew herself away. "It really is terrible!" she agreed. "Goodness, it must be—why, look!—nearly 11 o'clock! Oh, Mark, think of all the things we should be doing! They won't have any idea at the office what's become of me. Mr. Brooks will be furious!"

"Let 'em worry. You're never going back there again."

"But, Mark, don't you think—"

A knock at the door interrupted. It was the waiter who had come to take away the breakfast table. As he was leaving Mark took out his wallet and stuffed a bill into the man's hand. The waiter bowed, murmured thanks and departed. Mark did not replace the wallet.

Instead he opened it again, drew out a collection of coins and greenbacks and looked at them. A useful smile spread over his face. He scratched his chin meditatively.

"There was exactly $96 in that wallet yesterday," he announced. "Ninety-six dollars." Suddenly the bright grin returned. "Madame!" he declared with dramatic eloquence, "with all my worldly goods I leave you! Thirteen dollars and forty-five cents! Count 'em. Thirteen dollars!" He flung the contents of the purse into the girl's lap.

He was laughing and Norma laughed, too. This was evidently a joke. She gathered the money together.

"But you don't really mean it!" she protested. "Not $96! You couldn't have spent all that in one day. Why? It's more than three weeks' salary!"

Mark reversed the wallet, held it up, shaking it. "Must have spent it," he said. "It was here! You know," he went on, frowning as though in deep thought. "That's the queerest thing about money. I've thought of it before. Amazing thing! One moment you have it and the next it's gone. Have you ever noticed it?"

"Have I noticed it? Not oftener than every third day after pay day for the last three years! Ever since I've been working—"

Travers was not listening. With resolution he suddenly made for the coat draped on a chair across the room, thrust his arms into the place. In a flash he had become businesslike.

The girl jumped to her feet. "Where are you going?" she asked.

Mark came to her and put a hand on each of her shoulders. He smiled carelessly. "Promise to miss me horribly!" he demanded. "Promise every minute I'm away will seem an hour! Will you do that?"

"Oh, but I don't want to be alone here, Mark! Can't I come, too?"

Apparently this was not to be thought of. It was absolutely essential for Mark Travers to depart alone. But he would not be gone long. There was business to attend to and as soon as it had been settled he would come hurrying back. Norma's chagrin at this turn of events did not seem to displease young Travers.

She tried once more to speak of the office where she had been due at 8:30. Mark scoffed.

"You're to stay here," he insisted. "Right here in this room! And honestly I won't be long. Why, darling, don't you realize this is the first day of our honeymoon? Don't think about jobs and bills. All that is past for you. You're Mrs. Mark Travers and a devil of a lucky guy your husband is! Well, he realizes it! Not much of a prize package perhaps. Just a dab, but he's managed to get himself the prettiest, cutest, sweetest little bride in all the world!"

Sir Austen Chamberlain and Sir P. Cuffie Lister. The latter polled 66,305 votes and had a majority of 51,000.

Somehow it took much longer than might seem necessary for that farewell. It was thrilling to hear the ridiculous things Mark said. It was difficult for the youth to tear himself from blue eyes filled with adoration, from lips and soft arms that would restrain him.

The door closed and Norma was alone. She could not even hear Mark's footsteps going down the carpeted hall. Desperately she wanted to call him back but what good would that do? He would only go away a second time.

The luxuriousness of the room about her suddenly impressed Norma. She ran to the door leading into the bedroom. The rich ivory, rose and mulberry of walls and hangings, sleek, beautiful wainscotings, doors that were mirrors, and beyond her the glow of sunlight on a peach-tiled bath—she seemed to have noted none of these details before. The room represented elegance that was tasteful, restrained. Staying in such a place must be frightfully expensive.

Norma turned. There on the table in the sitting room were the paper bills and coins Mark had tossed into her lap. Thirteen dollars and forty-five cents—

Sharply the girl wished for Mark. There was no use pretending this rosy haze of happiness could go on endlessly. The work-a-day world was there just as it had been. This glorious balloon bubble must burst and ample warnings had been sounded in Norma's deliberately unlistening ears that all might not be so joyous then.

There had been the scene with Mark's father. Where was Mark now? Where would he get money to pay for this handsome suite of rooms? They couldn't stay on here. Where would they go? Mark's work in the real estate office had been in his father's employ and would end now. What would he do? What would she do?

A thousand practical questions waited to be discussed. Neither she nor Mark had mentioned any of them. Again Norma thought restlessly of her job in the office of Brooks, Welliver and Brooks! It really had not been right to leave without notice. Of course 24 hours ago she herself hadn't the faintest notion that this morning she was to be Mark's wife. She treasured these words; repeated them slowly. Mark's wife!

Willy Rody (left) and Capt. Christian Johansen, two of the three flyers of the ill-fated Eca, are shown happy and safe aboard the liner Stavangerford.

How she loved him! That was the tremendous, unquestioned fact of her existence now. How she loved this handsome husband!

Norma dropped to the wide, deep cushions of the davenport. She was happy again in memories. For long minutes she lay there. After all what was there for her to do in this new whirlwind of living but to wait for Mark? Mark would make everything come right. Mark was so wonderful.

She arose, went through the bedroom, into the roseate, sun-lighted bath with its burnished nickel taps and fittings. She let cold water run and splashed her cheeks with it until they coloured deeply. She brushed her hair and made the soft waves glisten. She saw the almoneness of herself in the door-length mirror and admired it. Grateful she could bring her beauty in tribute to Mark. There seemed little else that she had brought him.

Norma did not dawdle as she powdered, rouged her lips and

EXIT LABOUR!

To say that the General Election of 1931 will go down in history as betokening the most remarkable expression of national feeling ever to have been registered in Britain is but mildly to state the truth. The net result, virtually wiping out the Labour Party, is such as even the most optimistic supporter of the National Government could not have hoped for. All past political victories pale into insignificance compared with the triumph for common-sense recorded in Tuesday's polling. Above all else, the outcome once again proves that in times of crisis or national emergency, the British people invariably do the right thing, however much they may be given to "muddling through" when conditions are normal. In a word, the election advertises to the whole world that the nation is thoroughly sound at heart.

When the decision was made for the election to be fought on a basis of the National Government versus The Rest, it was generally felt that the Nationalists would win. The arrangements between Conservatives and Liberals in co-operating with a view to avoiding three-cornered contests obviously cut down the chances of Labour. But, even discounting this factor, the polling has shown a most amazing unanimity on the part of voters to send the National Government back to power. In the result, most of the Labour stalwarts have fallen by the wayside, so that the Party to-day is a mere fragment, with practically no leaders, destined to be utterly helpless in the new Parliament. Men who are not really extremists, such as Mr. Henderson, Mr. Clynes, Mr. Alexander and Mr. Morrison, figure among the rejected. For the time being at any rate, their political careers have at one fell swoop been brought to an end. They made the cardinal mistake of putting Party before Nation in a time of crisis. They have been told in no unmistakable terms that the people consider the present juncture to be one when pressing national and Imperial problems should be tackled on non-party lines. Emerging also from the conflict is the complete vindication of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and those of his followers who remained with him. The Prime Minister has clearly demonstrated his political sagacity, and, with others who have thought with him, has shown that he correctly sensed the nation's temper. His victory at Senham, in spite of Labour opposition, fittingly rounds off his recent activities and further establishes him in the esteem of the people.

What of the future? With such an overwhelming majority at its command, the National Government would appear destined to enjoy long life. It could, without difficulty, hold the reins for the full five-year term. Much will depend, however, on the Conservatives, now easily the preponderant party. There will be a great temptation for them to exploit the situation, but we prefer to believe that the "gentleman's agreement" between Mr. Baldwin and Mr. MacDonald will be loyally observed. Tariffs, within defined limits, seem inevitable, as well as some measure of Empire economic co-operation. But although they have the power, we do not imagine the Conservatives insisting on full-blooded Protection, not yet awhile, at any rate. Overwhelming as the Conservative strength is, it would be difficult to sustain the contention that the country has given a mandate for such a complete reversal of Britain's fiscal system. The great point about the election, and it is one which has given unfeigned delight to all overseas Britons, is that the Old Country wants her problems faced in a spirit of bold, broadminded statesmanship, reflective of a determination to put the nation's affairs on a sound, healthy basis. That, in brief, is what the verdict of the people means.

Japan and Manchuria.

Japan's determination to discover her own way to a settlement of the Manchurian dispute is again clearly expressed. The official communiqué issued from Tokyo on Tuesday reveals no modification of attitude in spite of the League Council's resolution, which Japan contends, with some justification, has no legal standing. Thirteen countries have called upon Japan to withdraw her troops by November 16. The immediate response, though no connexion appears—was the despatch of further troops and the extension of their encroachment. Nevertheless, Japan's statement of her position is reasonable in tone and argument. She declares, as though it were necessary, that her peculiar privileges in Manchuria have been challenged by China, working not by plan or organization, but by a covert hostility expressed in sheer weight of numbers. All the outstanding issues appear to Japan to be in the nature of evidence of a subterranean campaign aimed at Japanese rights. To this phantom, the Japanese have set up, and are at present determined to maintain, a very open kind of so-called defensive opposition, one which, being plainly aggressive, is more understandable to the West, and one which, to many minds, has prejudiced her position in world public opinion. Not only is this a fact, but the occupation has been provocative of trouble between Chinese and Japanese all over China. Tokyo must have been aware of the danger, but still went ahead. It is a point to be remembered when considering the sincerity of Japanese protestations regarding her respect for China's territorial integrity. There seems no reason to doubt that Japan's sole object is to secure an actual effort on the part of China to negotiate a settlement of pending issues. Japan wants nothing more than to drag the Chinese into diplomacy, Manchuria, though retaining power, has shifted the work and bother of diplomacy to the de jure authority in Nanking, though it is open to question whether the Nanking Government's writ is acceptable to the local au-

At the monthly meeting of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon it was decided that the Chamber should again make the annual contribution of $1,000 towards the Hongkong University this year.

The following forthcoming weddings are announced: Mr. Alfred Ashton Lewis, No. 1, Yue Kwong Terrace, to Florence Mary Whitfield, of the same address; Chief Petty Officer Clarence Cheslyn Foreman, H.M.S. Berwick, to Miss Annie Wong, No. 241, Nathan Road, Kowloon.

A week's formal remand was granted by Mr. S. H. Ho at the Central Police Court this morning in the case of four men who were arrested at 163, Johnston Road where they are alleged to have gone to commit an armed robbery. The men were all charged with attempted robbery.

HONGKONG SHARE MARKET.

OFFICIAL SUMMARY BY STOCK EXCHANGE.

The demand noted in yesterday's report developed this morning into a regular wave of buying. Consequently rates advanced substantially, in spite of which buying is far from being satisfied. It is also to be noted that by far the bulk of the demand is for cash, an eminently satisfactory state of affairs.

Chinese waters in demand at $1.010. Bank Underwriters were wanted at the advanced rate of $5.35. Douglas were in the market at $24.

Kailan Minings changed hands at 28½. Harveys were in request at $154.

Providents (old) were wanted at $5.25, and the new shares at $2.40. Hotels (old), after being done at $15.45, closed in firm demand at $15.65, with sellers seeking $16.

The new shares were wanted at $15.15. Lands, which were done at $81, closed in demand at this rate with sellers asking $84½.

Humphreys (old) were wanted at $184, and the new shares at $184. Realities, which were done at $12.80, closed in demand at $13.

Ewos changed hands at Ts. 16.40, closed at this quotation and sellers offering at $184.

Trams were wanted a $22½. Star Ferries were in demand at $91½.

China Lights, after being dealt in at $29, had buyers at the close at $28½, with sellers seeking $29½.

Electricity were in demand at $77.

Telephones (part paid) were the medium of sales at $29½.

Geminals (combined) were put through at $18.05 and $20¼, and at the close had buyers bidding $20.10.

Ropes were in demand at $17¼.

Dairy Farms were wanted at $30. Watsons were done at $15½, at which they closed in demand.

Lane, Crawfords (old) were wanted at $9½, and also the new shares at $6½.

Constructions (old) were wanted at $5.20 and the new shares at $1.30.

OLD MAN'S LAPSE.

IMPRISONMENT FOR THEFT.

An old man named Lai Kam was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment at the Kowloon Magistracy by Mr. Fraser this morning for stealing a length of cable from the garrison at Stonecutters Island. Defendant was employed in the fort. He had not been in trouble with the police before. The value of the property stolen was $50.

Authorities. Japan is determined, by some means or other, to put a stop to the game of battledore and shuttlecock hitherto pursued. She has now set out the fundamental principles of understanding which she demands of China and which she refused to present for perusal of the League Council. China meanwhile has suggested a Treaty of Arbitration. Thus, on the whole, hopes of peace are a trifle brighter. They would be more so if Japan could only see the advantage to be gained from making a concession to strong world feeling.

The Man Who Didn't Pay

HIS WIRELESS LICENCE.

By ROBERT LYND.

IT becomes clearer as the world grows older that an increase of civilization means an increase of espionage and inquisition.

Successive Governments spy upon our incomes. They spy upon our ages and the number of rooms in the houses in which we live. Insurance companies find out whether we are totalitarians or not. A modern Englishman cannot even enter his own country without an official's attempting to discover whether he is really an Englishman and whether he has any cigarettes in his pockets.

So accustomed have we become, indeed, to the Paul-Prying of modern life that I doubt if we have any spirit left to protest against the new invasion of our privacy by the "radio ghost car" that is being sent prowling round English streets to spy upon homes in order to discover whether occupiers possess an unlicensed wireless set.

Before long, there will be little that the authorities do not know about us. Already, I believe, they can discover without asking us whether we have a leaking tap in the house. A time will come when, by means of a ray, they will be able to discover from a policeman in the street whether we use American or English razor-blades. They will be able by the same means to count our linen and to see whether our floors are properly swept. The very pennies in our pockets will not be free from their penetrating stare.

It may be argued that, since we invent instruments to spy upon the secrets of the moon and other instruments to pry into the hidden life of the water in the ditch, it is fairly fair that we ourselves should be subjected to as strict an inspection. But the moon has no secrets of which to be ashamed, and the microscopical creatures in the water are free from a sense of guilt under scrutinizing eyes. We human beings, on the other hand, have consciences, and many of these consciences must be fairly bad ones, if the estimate that in Britain there are 400,000 possessors of wireless sets who have not paid for licences is approximately true.

If all human beings were honest, we could smile at ghost cars and their ingenious espionage. As it is, imagine the miseries of apprehension that this new fraud-detector must be bringing into 400,000 homes—homes, each of which was proudly believed, even within living memory, to be an Englishman's castle.

Alas! stone walls do not a castle make, nor brick walls either, now that the ghost-car is to be permitted to search our houses without a warrant. No longer will the guilty householder be able to sit in the bosom of his family listening to the Sunday sermon from the

Restored to Domestic Bliss.

It will be a nervous wreck, with all his money gone, who returns home. As a last hope, his wife will send him to a psycho-analyst, borrowing money to do so; and the psycho-analyst will creep into the murkiness of his infancy and discover that at an early age he had secretly fallen in love with a penny.

After long inquiry and deliberation, the psycho-analyst will say: "I can cure you, but I must warn you that the cure will be a painful one. It is this: Pay your wireless licence."

The patient will object violently, but he will be told that if he does not obey he will be haunted by ghost cars till in the end he may even lose his reason.

At that, in sorrow and in anguish, he will pay up. And his health will immediately take a surprising turn for the better.

By the end of a few months he will not mind if there is a ghost car in every street. Rosy with domestic bliss, will sit in the bosom of his family listening to the Sunday sermon from the loud speaker and wondering how he can defraud the revenue in some other and safer way.

LUXURY SURTAX.

AN IMPOST FOR FAMINE RELIEF APPROVED.

Nanking, Oct. 28. The Central Political Council has approved the National Government's luxury surtax regulations, and details have been handed over to the Legislative Yuan for examination.

It is understood that the surtax is limited to from three to five per cent. on luxury goods, the proceeds to be for famine relief. —Reuter.

YESTERDAY AFTERNOON'S RESULTS OUTLINED.

London, Oct. 28. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, interviewed by Reuters at Seaham, said: "The result is not only astonishing, but astounding. There are two gratifying things, one that Mr. J. H. Thomas has won no notice, the other that Sir Herbert Samuel has beaten a Conservative opponent at Darwen. Nothing shows more clearly that the election is a National Government election, not a party election."

Mr. MacDonald intimated that he did not care to discuss the results in detail until he had seen the complete list.

CLUB GAMBLING CONVICTION.

APPEAL AGAINST MAGISTRATE.

HEARING BEGUN.

An appeal against a decision of Mr. Williams in connexion with a gambling case came before the Court of Appeal this morning, the Judges being the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) and the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Lindell). The case concerns the conviction of a number of Chinese following a raid by the police on a club. There are 13 appellants (defendants) and the respondent is named as Choi Nam, a Chinese police constable.

Mr. F. C. J. J. K. K. C. together with Mr. B. Chuan Ho Lim, instructed by Mr. C. K. Hall Bratton, is for appellants, while Mr. Somerset Fitzroy is for the respondent.

It being agreed that the matter involved was law, Mr. Jenkins retired the events of the police raid on the Sik Yu Club, Queen's Road West, on August 6, and the arrest of a number of men, members of the club and servants, who were taken to the Central Police Station.

Other Proceedings.

Council members would not touch upon their treatment at the station, as it was the subject of other proceedings, but they were charged, three with keeping the premises as a common gaming house and the other 20 with playing in a common gaming house. The first and second were fined as keepers while the third was discharged as a keeper but fined $5 for playing. Ten of the 20 others did not appear and had their bail of $10 each exonerated. The remaining ten were represented by Mr. H. H. Bratton, and after the case had been strenuously argued over 12 sittings, they were fined $5 each for gambling.

There was, said counsel, no finding to that effect by the Magistrate. There was no evidence or suggestion in the Magistrate's finding that the chances of the game, Ta Kiu, were not favourable to all, alike, but the Magistrate found that commission was charged and fined 12 defendants as keepers or players.

Mr. Jenkins referred to evidence that money was put in a box to pay for the midnight supper, on which the Magistrate had held that commission might have been collected in that way but the purpose for which the money was taken was immaterial. Council submitted that that position was not sound as the purpose for which the money was taken was of the greatest materiality.

Midnight Supper.

Counsel also pointed out that the Club membership was 25, members paying an entrance fee of $200 and a monthly subscription of $30. The Club's income was more than sufficient for expenses and nothing in the way of commission was wanted.

While playing games the members had fruit, cigarettes and delicacies to "spice" their jaded spirits as the night went on, and finally had a mid-night supper to which members voluntarily contributed. They were not compelled to contribute and anything they gave was not in the form of commission.

The case is proceeding.

FISHING TRAWLER FOUNDERS.

News of the foundering of a Japanese motor fishing trawler, the Chinkinsio-maru, recently brought to the Colony yesterday, by eight Japanese survivors, members of the crew, who were rescued, while clinging to floating wreckage, by the local fishing junk, No. 533CH, which was providentially near at hand.

The survivors had accompanied the personnel of the fishing junk on its operations before returning with them to Cheungchau.

WOMAN WORKER INJURED.

A woman stonebreaker, Cheung Sam, aged 40, was injured and taken to hospital yesterday as the result of an accident on a site opposite the Sikh Temple in Morrison Road.

Employed on demolition work, she was engaged in levering a large rock when she slipped, fell down the hillside, and suffered injuries the most serious of which was a fractured shoulder bone.

CONSERVATIVES WIN GLASGOW SEATS.

ed as National Labour Member for Bassetlaw, with a 13,000 majority. Sir Robert Horne, Sir Donald MacLean, President of the Board of Education, are back in the new House and Jack Jones will sit again for Silvertown, with one of the largest Labour majorities.

Next Cabinet.

The Prime Minister will probably see the King to-morrow, before meeting the old Cabinet. He is expected also to consult with Mr. Baldwin and Sir Herbert Samuel. The reconstructed Cabinet will not be limited to ten members as in the case of the Cabinet formed for the emergency in August.

Parliament meets next Tuesday and, after formal preliminaries, will be opened by the King on November 10th.

Women Members.

There will be at least a dozen women members of the new Parliament, of whom eight will be new-comers. None of the former women Labour members were returned, but Lady Astor and the Duchess of Atholl are both back. Over fifty candidates forfeited their deposits of £150 paid on nomination, through failure to obtain an eighth of the votes polled. In practically every case these were either Communists or members of Sir Oswald Mosley's new party.

The public gave an exceptional number of large majorities. The smallest was at Ipswich where a National Labour Member was elected by two votes after five recounts.

Mr. Oliver Baldwin, Labour son of the Conservative leader who lost his seat.

Loyal Enthusiasm.

Their Majesties the King and Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York and Prince George, were present at Drury Lane Theatre to-night. A great crowd of enthusiasts surged through the police cordon and pressed closely to the Royal car and men and women waved their hats and cheered vociferously as Their Majesties stepped out.

Scene in Theatre.

Inside the house, the Royal Party had one of the most enthusiastic welcomes ever witnessed in any London theatre. When Their Majesties entered the Royal box, the whole audience rose and spontaneously sang "God Save the King."

It is many years since so many members of the Royal Family have attended a theatre together.—Reuters.

BUS COMPANY DISPUTE.

FITTER COMPLAINS OF DISMISSAL.

PROBATION DENIED.

The China Motor Bus Company, of Kowloon, were to-day the defendants in a summons taken out by a fitter employed by the Company who alleged that he was dismissed without sufficient notice. The complainant claimed wages in lieu of notice.

Mr. D. B. Evans was for the defendants. Giving evidence, the complainant, Choi Chuen, said he was employed on September 1 and was dismissed on October 10. During the period he was employed with the Company, he was paid three times. When he was dismissed, no notice was given him, and no reason as to why he was discharged.

Cross-examined by Mr. Evans, complainant said it had not been explained to him when he was taken of the staff, that he was on three months' probation. He denied that if he wanted to leave, he could have done so without

LOTTERY TICKETS SEIZED.

At the Central Police Court this morning, a Chinese woman was fined $100, or four months' hard labour, for the possession of 2,370 Chinese lottery tickets.

Detective Sergeant Macdonald told the Magistrate (Mr. Williams) that the case resulted from information received by the police, the woman being intercepted by a detective as she was on her way to deliver the tickets in Hollywood Road. The drawing for the tickets would have taken place to-morrow, the value of the seized ones being $1,291.

Mr. Wong, manager of the Company, testified that when he employed the defendant, he explained that defendant was on three months' probation, and could leave or be dismissed without notice. It was a custom of the Company, he said, that all fitters were employed on three months' probation. The time-keeper of the Company gave evidence of the defendant being often late for work in the mornings. Witness had not brought the entry-book of the Company.

His Worship adjourned the case until next Monday for the book to be produced.

ARMY ROWING.

TROPHIES CONTESTED AT STONECUTTER'S REGATTA.

For the first time since the Army Autumn regatta was inaugurated three years ago, two trophies were competed for at the Army rowing championships on Monday at Stonecutters.

The Garrison Chaplain's Challenge Cup, presented by the chaplain in 1929, was open to novice crews from all companies and batteries, and attracted the record entry of 18 crews. The first three in each of the two heats went into the final, resulting in the 12th Battery "B" crew, 31st Battery, 20th Battery, 12th Battery, "A" crew, B. Company, Artillery, and the Royal Engineers facing the star.

The 31st Battery had won the event in the past two years, but they could do no better than second, being beaten by the 12th Battery "B" which took the lead at the start and were never headed. They won by half a length with the 12th Battery "A" third.

A New Trophy.

A new trophy presented by H. E. Major-General J. W. Sandilands was contested by the infantry battalions, four crews entering from each battalion and the race counted as a team event, all boats finishing being awarded points. A very close and interesting race resulted, ending in the two battalions tying with 18 points each.

The S.W.H. "C" Company crew was first past the post, however, as the 12th Battery were awarded the trophy.

After the racing the G.O.C. presented the prizes and in a short speech said that he considered it a fine effort that about 150 men had taken part in the events, and the standard had been very high. He thanked Commander Morris P.N. for his assistance in judging and said that his reason for presenting his own trophy was that in events open to the Garrison the Artillery seemed and still seemed invincible. He hoped to give the infantry some encouragement. His own trophy was a magnificent silver tank.

Lieut. Col. Gross of the S.W.H. thanked the G.O.C. on behalf of his own regiment and the Artillery. After the awards the Officers of the Royal Artillery were at home to the Garrison officers for tea.

LEAGUE FOOTBALL.

The following have been selected to represent the Second Eleven versus the South Wales Borderers on the Kowloon Football Club Ground on Saturday, kick off at 3 p.m.: Gurevitch, Wells, London, Whitfield, Gilchrist, I. Greenberg, M. Greenberg, White, Simpson, Cotton, Rickford, Reserver: Everett, Williams and Guest.

LOCAL HOCKEY.

The hockey match between the Radio Sports Club and the H.K.S.R.A. played yesterday afternoon, resulted in a goalless draw. The game was very fast and even from start to finish.

GOLF as the STARS

Why must one take the club back slowly?

Notice for yourself some time the ease and rhythm in the backswing of the long, accurate driver and you will not wonder at his accuracy and length. The secret lies in his slow backswing.

A businesslike pitcher can't display his customary speed and control in throwing if he jerks his arm back quickly. When it is possible for him to do so he takes a slow, easy windup and then puts his full power into it in the overhead or sidearm throwing motion.

The same principle works in golf. Distance and accuracy are obtained by bringing the club head into the ball squarely and while travelling at its maximum speed. By taking it back slowly and easily, it enables one to increase the speed on the downswing. Besides his wrists, arms, shoulders and body are more likely to work in harmony.—ART HRENZ.

YULETIDE ART.

RAPHAEL TUCK'S FINE ASSORTMENT.

The good old custom of exchanging yuletide greetings during the Yuletide season is one which, so far as English people are concerned at any rate, seems never likely to die. If there is one institution more than another which keeps the custom alive it is the famous house of Raphael Tuck and Sons, Ltd., whose World Art Service is universally known. Once again, this British firm is to the fore in an amazingly varied and beautiful selection of all that is best in Christmas, New Year and birthday cards, seasonable auto stationery, art and fancy calendars, gift books and all manner of art novelties. "Better than ever" is a term which may be applied to this year's production, all of which bear that mark of quality which the name of Raphael Tuck implies.

Once again, Raphael House is entrusted with the production of the Royal cards, all of which are of high artistic merit and real triumphs of the printer's art. His Majesty the King's card depicts "St. Paul's from the River," a beautiful painting by Bernard Gribble; Queen Mary's is a charming study, "I Know a Lovely Garden," the work of Flora Pilkington; Gilbert Wright has painted the Prince of Wales card, a happy study entitled "Meeting the Saviour." Princess Mary's card depicts a hunting scene, "Breaking Cover," also by Gilbert Wright; whilst the Duke and Duchess of York have "St. James' Park, 1660," painted by Gordon Brown.

3,000 Designs.

Of the other cards, there is a truly wonderful variety, comprising upwards of three thousand different designs, among them the "Tapestry," "Garden," "Oilette," "Modernism," "Art," "Echings," and "Poi. Power," series are outstanding examples. The popular auto stationery cards, in boxes with envelopes, may also be mentioned.

Of calendars there is no end of variety. Notable here are the "Olfactans" with their representation of the actual fresh marks of original oil paintings of charming scenes, flowers, sailing ships, dog subjects, etc., besides which there are more than 130 daily block calendars, each combining a charming picture with a set of helpful or entertaining quotations and other valuable information for every day of the year. Amongst these are hints for motorists, housewives, golfers, gardeners, etc.

Gift Books.

Gift books which will appeal to children of all ages are issued of types and prices which will appeal to all tastes and pockets. Some of them are amazing bargains as the Golden Treasury Library is a really remarkable series of beautiful books, comprising seventeen attractive volumes, such as "Old Time Fairy Tales and Nursery Rhymes," "Dickens' Dream Children," "Alice in Wonderland," issued at 3s. 6d. net. "Our Holiday" series contains "The Lucky Book," "The Happy Book" and "The Merry Book," and in them will be found stories, songs, puzzles, etc. These also are priced at 3s. 6d. Astounding values are the Little Peoples Library, including "Bobby Rabbit and Bruin Black Bear" and "So to Bed Stories," all most attractively illustrated and selling at 6d. per volume.

New Annual.

A word must be added regarding "Tuck's Annual" and "Father Tuck's Annual for Little People." A novel feature of these publications is to be found in realistic surprise panoramas and "come to me" pictures, which consist of beautifully cut out figures which stand out in a most lifelike manner from appropriate backgrounds as soon as the page is turned. "Tuck's Annual," published at 5/-, appears for the first time under this name. "Father Tuck's Annual" has been a favourite for over thirty years; now the name has been changed to cater for older children, to whom the thrilling stories, chatty articles, puzzles and verses will make a wide appeal.

"Father Tuck's Annual for Little People," though offered at a lower price, is full of good things including charming stories and verses, interesting puzzles and simple songs set to music. Besides the wonderful new panoramas, both volumes contain four beautiful full-page colour plates and many black and white illustrations.

Two very interesting books have been added to "The Golden Treasury Library," namely, "Tales That Thrill" and "Tales of Adventure." Published at 3s. 6d. each, they have a strong appeal for the schoolgirl and schoolboy, being by writers who understand thoroughly the mentality of modern youth, while the illustrations are full of vigour. Yet another new series has been started, styled "The Happy Youngsters Library." This includes four charming volumes, "Robin Hood and His Merry Men," "Robinson Crusoe," "Winky Wonky Bird Stories" and "Fairy Tales." Their effective covers immediately attract, while the contents are full of interest. At one shilling each, they are of outstanding value.

So we could go on citing all manner of other wonderful products, amongst which must be mentioned the really most attractive "Bon Appetit" and "Lacette" brand of paperware, which includes serviettes, doilies and soufflé cups—high quality articles which enjoy great popularity. In short, Raphael House caters to everybody. And when Tuck's products are bought, the purchaser knows that he is securing the finest British goods which can be procured.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

The attainments of George Arliss, star of the Warner Bros. production, "Diarrh", at the Queen's Theatre now, do not stop with acting. Although for years Arliss has been recognized as one of the outstanding character actors on both the American and English stages, he is also an author of note. Biography and history especially interest him. During the war, for recreation, he delved deeply into the life of Alexander Hamilton, the great American statesman, and later wrote the biography and play, "Alexander Hamilton," in which he scored such a success in the title role. He has also written several other one act and full length plays in past years. Recently his autobiography, "Up The Years," appeared in the "Ladies Home Journal," and when it was reprinted in book form ran into 10 editions, and was rated as one of the best non-fiction sellers of the year, and is still selling well in the book market.

As a writer, Mr. Arliss in the screen version of "Diarrh," his great stage success, are such splendid players as John Bennett, Florence Arliss, Ivan Simpson, David Torrence, Doris Lloyd and Anthony Bushell. All Green directed and Julian Josephson wrote the screen play.

"Women of All Nations." Edmund Lowe exhaled a refreshing laugh of cigarette smoke. "They've written many a story about me since I came into the movies, but the best one has never been printed. I was reading on the Fox lot between scenes of Raoul Walsh's 'Women of All Nations,' the Fox production which is now showing at the King's Theatre in which he is again seen as Sergeant Quirt. Victor McLaglen who carries on as a sergeant, plays Greta Nissen, Nardie blonde, El Brendel and Director Walsh and an interviewer were in the group.

"It was at the Alhambra Theatre in Paris," Lowe continued, "and I was making my stage debut. My character was a 'cannibal'—my busin as was to hide in a clump of bushes and eavesdrop on my employer and another man's wife. I had one line to speak and I made up my mind that I was going to speak my one word with such fervor that the audience and critics would think of nobody in the cast but me. I was to say, 'I was supposed to be on the stage. I had missed the bushes and was being out at the audience. They tittered.

"Best Lytell had no idea why his deeply serious scene with Evelyn Vaugha was so amusing. At last he was supposed to turn to me and say, 'How did you happen to be here?' 'The audience roared. I had been there for half an hour. Then came my opportunity—my line. I postured, waved my arms, made faces and then roared the line out and stalked grandly to the wings.

McLaglen had forgotten himself completely in the interest of Lowe's recital. Thinking himself still in character, that of the rough, hard-boiled leatherstocking Fling, he blurted out, 'What else could be expected from a man like you.'

Lowe's pass went wild, and Walsh now near hysteria, jumped up. 'Save it for the camera, boys, let's go.' 'Song of the West.'

The original handicaps of talking pictures, which limited movement to close-ups, and to such a degree that outdoor scenes were impossible, have been entirely overcome in "Song of the West," the 100% natural colour, singing, talking, dancing Vitaphone epic of covered wagon days which comes to the Queen's Theatre on Sunday next.

"Song of the West" has action and movement. The eye of the all-natural colour camera follows the rapid movements of horsemen, the march of the pioneers, and the other magnificent outdoor scenes with complete ease, thus speeding up the action of the story greatly.

uncharted wilderness, but Arliss, a government agent sent out to get evidence against the "carpet-baggers," leads the "conquering horde" over the new trail in the face of great dangers from Indians, wild animals and wilder white men. After many adventures and the courageous bend of Abilene, and the fortune of the Texas girl is made secure.

"Mexicali Rose." Sam Hardy, starred in "Mexicali Rose," the Columbia all-talking drama of love and revenge in Old Mexico now playing at the Central Theatre, recently played a series of underworld "heavies" which threatened to put him in the "bad man" class permanently. All of these required manerisms and tricks of speech foreign to Hardy's personality, yet he played them in the same sincere convincing manner that won him fame as a leading man. Hardy found it a relief to get back to a straight role in "Mexicali Rose." His characterization of "Happy" Manning in this film is intensely human. "Happy" is an absolutely regular fellow, a hard-boiled but square-shooting, generous sort.

The actor who usually plays a natural role on stage or screen finds it difficult to characterize; equally lost in the character man who tries to enact a straight role. Few actors attempt both. Sam Hardy is an exception to the rule. The cast supporting Hardy in "Mexicali Rose" is of uniform excellence. It includes Barbara Stanwyck, William Janney and Arthur Rankin. Erle C. Kenton directed.

William Collier, Jr., who plays one of the featured roles in "The Melody Man," the Columbia all-talking musical drama now showing at the Central Theatre, comes of an illustrious theatrical family and followed in his parents' footsteps when he chose an histrionic career. His father, William Collier, Sr., a distinguished actor and writer, and his mother was famous on the legitimate stage under the name of Paula Marr. Although young Collier was prepared at the St. do la Salle School for Princeton, he decided to forgo a college education and go back to the stage on which he had made a debut under his father's tutelage at the age of six. Coming to California on a vacation trip with his father he was given an opportunity by Thomas Ince to play the juvenile role in "The Bugle Call." Since then he has continued in pictures and has attained notable success. Among his recent productions are "The Lion and the Mouse," "Tide of the Empire" and "The Donovan Affair."

GUILTY LIPS.

slipped into her clothing. She hurried because Mark might return at any moment. She must be ready to leave when he returned. They couldn't remain in this extravagant place any longer.

When she had made herself as presentable as possible the girl spent a useful moment before the mirror. Her dress was the one she had worn the night before. It was a brown crepe of utmost simplicity, bought only three weeks before. Modish, wellfitting in spite of its cheapness—but brown. Brown was no colour for a bride to wear! Her neat pumps were brown, too, and she had worn the brown beret in place of a hat. It had seemed appropriate for the drive to Woodbury, less appropriate this morning. Well, doubtless hundreds of other brides who had made impulsive marriages had known the same pang over absence of wedding finery.

From the sitting room window Norma could see the huge clock on a sky-scraper tower two blocks away. Twenty after twelve now. Mark had been gone nearly an hour. She tried peering down into the street to see if she could see him. That was ridiculous. The window was on the eighth floor and it was impossible to look straight downward.

Well, she could write the letter to Brooks, Welliver and Brooks explaining why she was giving up her work.

It was a difficult letter to write. Norma sat at the neatly appointed desk a long while before she put her pen down on the fresh paper. She began three separate pages and in rapid succession discarded them. It was fully 45 minutes before the note was finished and then Norma studied it with dissatisfaction before finally the sheet was folded and inserted in its envelope. She addressed it but left the flap un-

HONGKONG UNIVERSITY.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION MAGAZINE.

Lampadee-Dromos, the official organ of the Hongkong University Christian Association has made its bow, and it is fitting that its first number explains its name. In Greek the words mean "Torch Bearer," and the sponsors have seized on the name hoping that each generation of the University will hold aloft the Torch of the Gospel as did the runners in the ancient Greek torch races.

The first number of 20 pages contains an interesting selection of personal gossip, resumes, of recent events connected with the Association's activities, and some notes on coming events, a literary page and some exchanges of opinion.

Lampadee-Dromos hopes to appear twice during this term.

sealed. She would ask Mark what he thought of the note before mailing it.

Surely Mark should be there! Terror with clutching, vice-like fingers of ice gripped the girl's heart. A traffic accident—a single misstep—oh, if anything had happened—!

Again she sought the window. Then for 10 minutes Norma paced back and forth—back and forth. She could not sit still but she must stop this worrying. She must believe nothing terrible had happened. It was only a foolish nightmare. Mark would be there any moment now. She sat down again. A moment more and she was on her feet, as restless as before. The frightful premonition would not be downed.

At 3 o'clock Norma was still waiting. She was still alone. What had become of Mark Travers?

Could this be his father's work? (To Be Continued)

NO CHANGE IN THE DOLLAR.

LITTLE RESPONSE BY £ TO ELECTION.

Contrary to expectations, the London-New York cross-rate has not materially improved as a result of the sweeping victory for the National Government, the quotation being 3.90 1/2.

Silver has advanced 1/8th in London, where the offerings are small. The market is quiet, with India small buyers and America showing little interest.

In New York, silver is up a quarter, the market being steady. The Hongkong dollar remains unchanged at 1s. 2 1/2d., the local market being dead. A nominal rate of 1s. 3d. is quoted, but no one seems inclined to do business. The Shanghai rate is 1s. 7 1/2d., the market being dull.

NOTHING FRESH.

MANCHURIA ISSUE UNCHANGED.

London, Oct. 28. Developments in the Sino-Japanese situation appear to be marking time.

The Chinese Embassy in London has heard nothing fresh on the position either from Nanking or Geneva, while Dr. Sze, the Chinese representative to the League Council, is reported to be still in Switzerland.—Reuter.

LONG DISTANCE FLIGHT.

R.A.F. PLANE COVERS 3,000 MILES.

London, Oct. 28. The Royal Air Force long range monoplane reached Abu Suir, Egypt, early this afternoon, successfully completing her non-stop flight of nearly 3,000 miles.—British Wireless.

BROTHERS ABANDON RECORD ATTEMPT.

Vienna, Oct. 28. Flight Lieutenant Hamilton, and his brother, Kenneth, have abandoned their England to Australia speed record flight owing to the very bad weather. They are returning to England as soon as possible in order to make a fresh start.—Reuter.

Mr. Edgar Wallace, defeated by 30,000 at Blackpool.

THE THORBURN MYSTERY.

SETTLEMENT BASIS REACHED.

London, Oct. 28.

The negotiations between the British and Chinese Governments with reference to the "imprisonment" of John Thorburn, the young Shanghai Briton, are nearing completion.

Reuter's correspondent learns that the British Foreign Office has received a despatch from Sir Miles Lampson, the British Minister at Peking, which, it is understood, forms a basis of settlement.—Reuter.

RUGBY TOURISTS.

SOUTH AFRICANS WIN AGAINST GLASGOW.

London, Oct. 28.

The South African rugby tourists scored another victory to-day, when they defeated Glasgow by 21 points to 13.—Reuter.
